Labor Must Save Itself
The Jersey City Mouse
Way Out on the Prairie
So Cosmo Jumped

Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1924, by Star Company)

POLITICAL candidates celebrated Labor Day trying to collect labor votes, Coolidge talking to labor union leaders at the White House, Davis to Labor Day gatherings in Ohio, La Follette talking over the radio, Wheeler choosing Boston for his labor speech.

The majority of labor men didn't listen, being too busy enjoying Labor Day. They didn't miss much.

LABOR is one cog in the machine of modern industry, the most important cog, although the machine doesn't admit it. Labor's destiny depends on labor, not benevolent speeches in political campaigns. When men know more, they will have more. When they stick together as capitalists stick together, free of religious, and race hatreds and prejudices, they will have power.

Prosperity and power they must get for themselves. They will not be handed to them.

ON HUDSON boulevard in Jersey City this happened: A large Tom cat was crossing the street with a mouse, still alive, in its mouth. An automobile ran over the Tom cat, broke his back, made him open his mouth, the mouse, a little wet, escaped.

If, in the course of evolution, that mouse had reached the stage of the ordinary superstitious human being, it would have said and believed, "the Supreme Being that runs this universe suspended all other business and sent that automobile along in the nick of time."

WHEN you were small you used to sing:

"Way Out Upon the Prairie, How Many Children Dwell
"That Never Read the Bible, or Hear the Sabbath Bell."

There are on earth now one thousand languages into which the Bible has never been translated. That isn't the worst of it, hundreds of millions of human beings can't read any language. Some translations are interesting.

For instance, "Clarkawaya" means "hail Mary" in the Chinook Bible used by missionaries of British Columbia. "Clarkawaya" makes you realize how difficult it is to translate the Bible into savage languages, for "Clarkawaya" is a corruption of the greeting to the missionary Clark, "Clark, how are you?"

All the Indians shortened that greeting to "Clarkawaya" and so it was used in the translation of the Bible.

COSMO POCCOLLI, twenty-five years old, out of work for eight months with twenty-eight cents left, was willing to make a few dollars no matter how. While moving picture men on a tug in the river ground their machines, Poccolli jumped from the Williamsburg Bridge, 135 feet high. Nothing had been promised, but he thought he might attract attention and make a little money. He whirled around a few times, struck the water, was killed—that settled his employment problem.

FRIENDS had told Poccolli how Steve Brodie made a fortune, running a saloon, after "jumping" from the Brooklyn Bridge.

They neglected to tell him that Brodie never jumped. He waited in the water below while a dummy was thrown from the bridge. Reporters, because they were deceived, or were obliging, wrote of Steve Brodie's jump.

It's often more profitable to pretend to do a thing than actually do it, in this unjust world.

FLYING from Greenland to Labrador, 570 miles, in 6 hours 49 minutes, the American fliers got back to the American mainland, in five months and fourteen days after their start around the world. President Coolidge welcomed them with a telegram. Children of the future will be amazed at this slow trip around the world. A feature of public school education in future ages will be a flying trip around the world during Summer vacation. The child of twelve will know the principal mountain

SEIZE RICH MAN'S WIFE IN RAID

Mrs. Lucy A. Tucker of No. 58 Warwick road, Melrose, is beautiful and wealthy, the wife of Sherman Tucker, successful Boston architect.

Leslie J. Wilson, twenty-nine, of No. 54 Rock avenue, Lynn, is a struggling young draughtsman, a married man and a father.

Today in Plaistow, N. H. district court, the beautiful Mrs. Tucker, who is vivacious, twenty-eight, and the Lynn draughtsman were arraigned before Judge Hill, charged with a serious offence. They were arrested at a camp at Conley's Grove, Island Pond, near Plaistow.

Each was held in $200 for the grand jury but Mrs. Tucker smilingly took a purse out of her handbag and put up cash bail for both.

Immediately following the arraignment, Mrs. Wilson, wife of the draughtsman, filed in Lynn, through Attorney James W. Sullivan, a $15,000 alienation of affections suit against the beautiful Mrs. Tucker.

WENT TO OTHER WOMAN.

If Mrs. Wilson had not returned unexpectedly from Cleveland where she was visiting, the fevered excitement in Plaistow today and the excitement that will prevail in the exclusive Melrose residential section where Mrs. Tucker makes her home, might still be somewhere in the future, if at all, according to the draughtsman's wife.

Mrs. Wilson ran right into rumors on her return, she said today. Then she hunted up the beautiful wife of the architect and remonstrated with her, telling the wealthy woman that Wilson's child was calling for him.

"Isn't that pathetic," Mrs. Tucker is quoted by Mrs. Wilson as replying. "But all married men are doing the same thing. Just because you are married, it doesn't make any difference. I don't care if you have ten children."

"I wish you and my husband and I would meet some night," Mrs. Wilson returned, she said.

"Wouldn't it be dramatic," was the wealthy Mrs. Tucker's response, according to the young draughtsman's wife.

Then Mrs. Wilson engaged Eben

JENNIE KARRAS AND FIANCE

Joseph Brass (at right) is going ahead with plans for his marriage to the Chelsea girl who attempted to kill herself when her mother demanded she return the engagement ring to her fiance. Miss Karras jumped from a front window at her home, No. 15 Third street, Chelsea, and is now lying in a serious condition at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

RUSH PLANS TO SEND FIRPO BACK HOME

Washington, Sept. 2 (I.N.S.).—Action by immigration authorities at New York looking to the possible deportation of Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine prize fighter, was ordered today by the Department of Labor.

Commissioner Curran at Ellis Island was instructed by Acting Secretary of Labor White to order Firpo before him for an additional examination on the basis of new evidence submitted by Cannon William Chase.

Chase placed his evidence before Secretary White today and demanded immediate action. White was impressed by the new evidence, the nature of which was not revealed and at once ordered Curran to take

'LOST' WITH 15 DEBS AT HIS SIDE

Syosset, N. Y., Sept. 2 (I. N. S.).—Edward Albert, Great Britain's jazz loving Prince, danced all night at the home of Devereaux Milburn, well known polo player, at Wheatley Hills, and returned to the James A. Burden estate, where he is living on Long Island, at 6 this morning, tired but serenely happy.

Newspapermen were mystified early today when they discovered that the Prince had returned to the Burden home at 6 o'clock and numerous rumors of where and how he spent the night were broadcast.

No one knew just where he had been until members of his party, explaining why he was sleeping so late, revealed that he had fox-trotted until the wee small hours.

CHOICE OF 15 DEBS.

About fifteen members of the fashionable younger set attended the dance. Who the debs and sub-debs were who danced with 'Prince Charming' is not known. Wales left the Burden home for dinner at the Milburns at six o'clock last night, accompanied only by Spencer Carlton, his personal bodyguard from Scotland Yard, without revealing his destination, but it was said he had not appeared at the Milburn home for dinner and the mystery, cleared up this morning, began.

It was the second occasion since his landing when he has left the Burden home to spend an evening.

LOOKING FOR A THRILL.

The members of his staff who were with the Prince last night were in bed at 11 o'clock this forenoon, according to members of the household. The Prince had not arisen at that hour.

On previous visits to this country the Prince often went out accompanied only by one of his equerries. His other aides sometimes waited the Army Air Service, Major General Mason A. Patrick, to arrive at the air port today to be on hand for the arrival of the army world fliers who are now expected to reach here tomorrow afternoon.

NATIONAL SALUTE TO BE FIRED AS WORLD FLIERS REACH BOSTON

PATRICK TO GREET AIR MEN

The general will fly from Washington in a De Haviland plane and will carry as his passenger Lieutenant St. Clair Street, his aide-de-camp. General Patrick has accepted the invitation of the City of Boston to be its guest while he remains here. He will stop at the Copley-Plaza.

The army officials in charge of the arrival of the fliers are making elaborate plans to take care of the huge crowd expected. Everything possible that can be done for the safety of the public will be done.

A field hospital will be in operation under Major William A. Hagins of the Medical Department, U. S. A., flight surgeon. The Red Cross will also have personnel on hand to assist in this work.

One company of the 13th Infantry from Fort Strong, Boston Harbor, will act as guard of honor. As the fliers come ashore the troops will present arms and the 13th Infantry band will play the national anthem. The national salute of twenty-one guns will be fired by members of Battery A, 9th Regiment Coast Artillery Corps.

After the ceremony here the fliers will be taken across the harbor to army headquarters. Here official cars will take them to the Copley-Plaza.

Final Plans Made To Welcome Fliers Here

By BERT FORD

Final arrangements were made today at the Boston airport for the official welcome to the United States army 'round-the-world fliers.

General Mason A. Patrick, chief of the army air service, before hopping off from Washington to Boston, sent word to the local committee to be ready to receive the globe-circling birdmen late Wednesday afternoon.

A delayed radio from the United States cruiser Milwaukee announced that the planes could not leave Indian Harbor until today. In the opinion of General Patrick this ought to bring them in Boston late tomorrow, barring mishap.

Late advices received at South Boston Army Base from Washington today indicated that the world fliers might not reach this city until Thursday, or Friday. A troop of cavalry will act as escort to them in their movements around Boston.

General Patrick was to arrive at the East Boston field this afternoon.

The world fliers will be given a salute of twenty-one guns, an honor reserved for the President of the United States, but specially accorded to them in acknowledgment of their triumph. The salute will be fired by Battery A, Ninth Regiment, C. A. C.

REACTION ON BARGE.

The 13th Infantry, with its band, will camp at the airport and take part in the reception.

Hopping off from Indian Harbor today, the fliers will head for Cartwright Harbor. From there they will soar to Hawkes Bay, Newfoundland, a distance of 290 miles. The next hop to Pictou, N. S., will be 420 miles. From Pictou they will fly 200 miles to St. John, where a brief stop will be made, after which they will wing their way 320 miles to Boston.

They will land in the water at special moorings anchor their planes and be conveyed in a launch to the big naval barge moored at the northwest corner of the airport, where the first official welcome to Boston will take place. Officials representing city, State and Nation, the army and navy and civic life will be aboard the barge to welcome the intrepid birdmen.

At the close of the reception ceremonies on the barge the fliers and guests will be conveyed in General Brewster's yacht Q10 to the Army Base, where automobiles will be waiting to convey the fliers and their escort to the Copley Plaza Hotel. A suite has been engaged for them there.

WANT CHANCE TO REST.

They will "stick up" and rest the balance of their first day in Boston. On the second day they will pay formal visits to Governor Cox at the State House, to Mayor Curley at City Hall, and will be presented to the public at Parkman bandstand on Boston Common.

Captain Knight announced today that he received special instructions from General Patrick urging the Boston public to be as considerate of the fliers as possible. He said Lieutenant Smith and his comrades had repeatedly cabled a wish to spare public functions in order to get all the rest possible.

Hundreds of organizations and individuals have offered to help entertain the fliers, but that the aviators are frayed in body and mind and need rest and relaxation more than anything else, he said.

Captain Knight explained that the program called for a stay of but forty-eight hours by the birdmen in Boston and he sincerely hoped that the public "would not impose themselves upon them" in their natural eagerness to welcome them.

FLOPPY HAT FOR THE PRINCE

THE PRINCE'S HAT HAS 'EM ALL GUESSING

Floppy, that's all, but the way it drapes about the head of the royal one is enough. Everyone wants one now, to be swank. Is felt, light weight and the more you abuse it the better it looks. And the combination created by the roll-neck sweater! Who'd ever think it was the Prince?

Sears, a Lynn civil constable. They went to Brant Rock on a hunt, but found nothing. Through a postcard sent by Wilson to his mother, carrying a picture of Conley's Camp near Plaistow, the searchers then went to Island Pond.

A warrant was obtained from Judge Hill and, accompanied by Chief Hill of Atkinson, N. H., the nearest police department, Mrs. Wilson and Constable Sears crept up on the camp at night.

Stealthily they crept up the stairs inside and burst into a room where they charge they found the couple.

All Plaistow listened with bated breath today as the testimony of the raid was presented.

anxiously long after midnight for his return.

Inspector Charlton, who guards the Prince closely except when he goes on one of his trips of diversion, said today that the crush at the races yesterday was the first time the Prince ever had been in such close contact with a crowd.

He said that Wales got a thrill from the experience and remarked that it had been "rather good fun."

Captain A. F. Lascelles, the Prince's secretary, professed ignorance as to Edward Albert's whereabouts last night and early this morning.

"Yes he came in rather late, but I am quite sure he was not lost," Lascelles said. "If he had been lost you may be sure I would have been advised of it by 10 o'clock."

It is customary in London also, Lascelles said, for the newspapers to decide the Prince is lost if he stays out after midnight.

There are only two more possible occasions on which the royal visitor will have to brave curious American crowds. One is at the International Polo matches later this month, and the other is at the six meter yacht races, something within the next two weeks. The Prince will meet the ordeals without extra guards, Inspector Carlson said.

GREECE TO RUN DOWN SLAYERS OF BULGARS

Sofia, Sept. 2.—The Bulgarian government today informed the International Commission of Inquiry into the recent killing in Greek Macedonia of a number of Bulgarians, that the Greek government had notified it that prosecutions of offenders in the case were being pushed and that all of the Bulgarians arrested after the incident, had been released. Major Kalnbalakin and three other Greek officers have been transferred from the district where the killings occurred and Lieutenant Dokhasis and three other militiamen, who guarded the Bulgarians, have been arrested.

5,000 KLANSMEN AT MEETING NEAR SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Knights of the Ku Klux Klan from all sections of New York State gathered last night on a farm at Lafayette, eight miles south of this city, for what guards said was a sectional meeting of the order.

Reporters who managed to get close to the meeting place estimated more than 5,000 persons were in attendance.

ranges, rivers, and capitals of the world, by having actually seen them.

STATISTICS show that the month of marriages is changing from June to August, and that's a good thing. June is the month from the romantic point of view, August from the practical point of view.

The first baby of an August wedding comes along in the Spring with the flowers of May and can be put outdoors at once to get fresh air. In addition, the mother can nurse the baby all through the hot months of the first Summer, when the right artificial food is hardest to find.

WITH the Dawes plan "all set" Lord Rothermere, who succeeds his brother Northcliffe as the most influential man in England, urges readers of his newspapers to boycott the German loan. It isn't that he opposes Germany, hysones are hysones for Rothermere. But he says if American money finances German factories, English manufacturers and workmen will not be able to stand the competition, and there is much in that.

However, the German bonds will pay big interest. American financiers apparently have decided to float them. More fortunate than England, the United States, with a tariff wall made as high as necessary, can take care of foreign competition. There is something in protection, especially after a great war, when men must work for what they can get.

HURRICANE IS SWEEPING UP COAST

Weather Bureau Warns All Shipping Along South Atlantic

New York, Sept. 2.—The tropical hurricane which originated near St. Thomas Island several days ago, today moved slowly northwestward toward the South Atlantic coast, according to Weather Bureau reports.

Reports were that the storm had tied up a number of boats, particularly sailing vessels and heavily laden steamers, all along the South Atlantic.

The island of St. John in the Virgin Island group was practically laid waste by the storm. Hurricane with in a period of four days.

So far five deaths have been reported at St. John, but there were many minor casualties.

The Weather Bureau today issued the following storm warning:—

"Advisory 10 A. M. in absence of vessel reports, impossible to locate center of tropical storm accurately. Estimated position latitude twenty-six, longitude seventy-one-thirty. Disturbance apparently continues of hurricane intensity and is moving northwest. Caution advised waters off South Atlantic coast and northeast of Bahamas."

Cooling thunderstorms enroute to sweltering New York were awaited today by sizzling millions, who arose from a night on roofs and park lawns where they sought relief from the hottest September day in history.

DOCTOR IS HELD

Sylvia occupied the apartment. The men arrested were Dr. William J. Brown of No. 1215 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, and his chauffeur, Frank A. Dwyer, of No. 141 Pond street, Brookline.

They were charged with having morphine in their possession but if Clifford dies more series charges will be preferred against them.

According to the police the Clifford apartment has been under surveillance for some time, as a result of complaints by neighbors. Early today a telephone message was received at the Brighton station to the effect that a lot of noise was being made there.

Police were sent to the apartment and they found Clifford unconscious. He was sent to the City Hospital where his name was placed on the danger list. Clifford's sister was not in the apartment.

According to the police, Dr. Brown was graduated from Tufts Medical School in 1906, and for three years was resident physician in the South Department of the City Hospital.

Then he opened an office at Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street, and is said to have built up a large practice.

A year or more ago he was arrested in connection with the death of a Cambridge girl as the result of an illegal operation, but the charge was never pressed.

Later he was arrested in Boston for posing as another physician in an attempt to obtain drugs.

quarrel between the girl and her mother, who objected to her matrimonial plans. Jennie is a cloakmaker in Boston and when she planned to get married she began to save money. The mother insisted that the girl turn over to her the entire wages. She had previously told Jennie to return an engagement ring which Brass had given her, but this the girl refused to do.

Brass was in the house at the time of the quarrel, but knew nothing of the girl's suicide attempt until he heard her screams when she landed on the sidewalk after leaping from a front window. He rushed downstairs and to the police station nearby, whence the ambulance was rushed to the house and the girl taken to the hospital.

She was found to be suffering from a fractured jaw and a possible fractured skull and her name was placed on the danger list.

It was understood that Commissioner Curran would issue a warrant for Firpo's arrest as the first step.

Chase predicted that Firpo will be ordered deported within the next few days.

Firpo's troubles started when he entered the United States in July On the same ship which brought him from Buenos Aires was Miss Blanca Tourdes, a pretty South American girl. The specific charge against Firpo is that he perjured himself in explaining the girl's presence on the ship.

CHICAGO BANDITS KILL ONE IN ROADHOUSE RAID

Chicago, Sept. 2.—An entertainer playing his ukelele unmindful of the robbery, was killed, another mistreated and a score of patrons, including several women, were robbed today when six bandits held up a recently opened Northside road house, less than an hour after gangmen had bound two employes in the Quigley dairy company, cracked a safe containing $7,000 and escaped.

The road house bandits escaped after a battle in which revolvers and sawed-off shotguns flared.

PETITION FOR DELAY GRANTED

Friends Sign Plea to Court, and Sheriff Is Stopped in Act of Ejecting Her

Mrs. Cecilia A. Byfield, a widow of No. 15 Eldredge street, Newton, has won another hair's breadth victory over the city of Newton in her efforts to retain her home which the city wants as for school purposes.

While a deputy sheriff was packing the belongings of the widow preparatory to evicting her and placing her possessions in the street, her attorney obtained signatures to a petition of Newton residents and neighbors asking that the court delay the eviction proceedings.

As the deputy sheriff was carrying the first trunk to the sidewalk, he was notified by his superiors to refrain from ejecting the widow, although he was directed to remain in the home in technical possession of the domicile.

TWO YEARS' BATTLE.

For two years Mrs. Byfield has battled the town authorities of Newton. The city claims the Byfield property by right of eminent domain. It was decided that $7,500 is a proper amount for the city to pay for the property. Mrs. Byfield says $40,000 is nearer the proper figure on account of the magnificence of the interior decorations.

The Byfield property is wanted for the completion of the Underwood School building, but neighbors of the widow in their petition ask that a full accounting of all school funds in connection with the new building be made to the court.

NEIGHBORS ACT.

The petition also prays that the town be enjoined from paying out city funds for carrying on litigation to dispossess the widow.

It was not until the deputy sheriff was busy packing the effects of the widow that her attorney, Robert Blair of Wilmington, Delaware, started the petition in circulation. The neighbors of the widow rallied to her support and within half an hour the petition bore scores of signatures. When it was presented to Judge Raymond of the Middlesex Superior Court the petition was signed.

It was argued today.

IN COURT TODAY.

Should the prayer of the petition be granted the school authorities will be compelled to make a complete accounting of all funds expended in connection with the Underwood school.

Mrs. Byfield has insisted, since the first effort was made to take her home from her, that the home was priceless, being a gift from her deceased husband. She agreed, however, to give up the house should the city pay her the real value of the home as set by school purposes.

MAN KILLED ON PORCH; TWO WOMEN ARE HELD

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—An unidentified man, of middle age, was shot and killed early today on the porch of a West Philadelphia house occupied by Mrs. Helen Mayhew, forty-six years old, and Hazel Benson, thirty years old. Both women were arrested and held on a homicide charge.

Mrs. Mayhew is said to have admitted to police she had threatened the man and three companions with a pistol when they attempted to force their way into the house. According to detectives, she is said to have stated she "didn't intend to shoot the man."

76 FINED AS DRUNKS IN CAMBRIDGE COURT

Yesterday being Labor Day, seventy-six backsliders labored long and earnestly in the interest of absorbing heroic quanties of alcoholics in Cambridge.

Today in third district court at East Cambridge two clerks labored for an hour in shuffling the pack. Then Judge Robert Wolcott dealt out judgment until the seventy-six were disposed of. Some were fined, some went to the cooler and others were released.

It was a record wet day—not counting the storm.

550,000 CHILDREN AT CHICAGO SCHOOL OPENING

Chicago, Sept. 2.—A demonstration by about 200 parents against transfer of their children from the Harper school to make room for a Junior high school, an innovation of the new school year, and a fire, believed of incendiary origin, in the Mark Sheridan school, marked the return to study today for about 550,000 Chicago children, including about 120,000 in parochial and private schools.

"We pay taxes for neighborhood schools and our children should have the right to attend those schools," said the parents who invaded the Harper school.

MISS BOSTON ON WAY TO ATLANTIC CITY

Mildred M. Prendergast is having the time of her life as she says. She's full of thrills and of expectancy over her participation in the Beauty Tourney at Atlantic City. Mrs. Prendergast is filmed here just before she boarded the Colonial Express which is bearing her to Philadelphia, whence she is to entrain for New Jersey's famous coast resort.

"CHARMING GIRL" WINNER

MISS BOSTON'S 'THRILL OF A LIFETIME'

The "thrill of a lifetime" came to Mildred M. Prendergast, who won the Boston American's CHARMING GIRL tournament, when she stepped aboard the Colonial Express at the South Station today bound for Atlantic City for a week's free trip as guest of this newspaper. She was scheduled to make her first public appearance in Atlantic City tonight at the American Beauty Ball, one of the features of the Atlantic City pageant.

"Miss Boston" was accompanied on the trip by her husband, Attorney Michael T. Prendergast, a promising young Boston lawyer and widely known as an expert swimmer. A host of friends waved the couple good-by as the train rolled out of South Station.

All that seemed to bother "The Queen of the Hub" was whether she would be permitted to eat breakfast in her room at the Hotel Traymore, where a suite was reserved for her. She was informed that she could eat it on the roof or in the cellar if she desired.

"I do hate to eat breakfast in a hotel dining room," she said. "I always eat it in bed," she added. "That's one luxury that I have indulged in ever since my marriage eighteen months ago."

"Tea," piped in Husband Prendergast, who was chiefly responsible for his wife's entrance in the American's tournament, "that's one bad habit I am responsible for."

"I'm so thrilled that I don't know what to do," said the "cameo girl" as the train was leaving Boston. "I have slept very little since winning this honor. All I can do is lie awake and think. It's just wonderful—that's all."

Never was a child any happier when leaving on a vacation than was the "cameo" girl as she left Boston for a week's free trip to Atlantic City with all expenses paid by this newspaper. One of the really charming things about the MOST CHARMING GIRL in Greater Boston is her ingenuousness. There is no ego in her makeup. She will never suffer from a "swelled head," regardless of the honors she attains. Her friends all agree that the word "charming" describes her exactly. She has unusual magnetism and personality.

Arrangements were made to escort her to a suite at the Hotel Traymore upon her arrival in Atlantic City. This is one of the best hotels at this wonderful resort.

300 IN CHELSEA THEATRE FIRE PANIC

Three hundred persons in the Chelsea Theatre, No. 375 Broadway, Chelsea, were thrown into a panic when moving picture films in the projection booth caught fire. It was the opening day of the theatre after having been closed for a year because of fire.

Meyer Shapiro, of No. 126 Intervale street, Roxbury, manager of the theatre, fainted during the excitement and was carried from the smoke-filled building by firemen. Several women and children were scratched and bruised in the rush for safety.

All made their way out, the fire being confined to the booth, where films and two projecting machines were destroyed with a loss said to be $2,000.

A short time after the firemen had apparently extinguished the fire, it broke out anew, and the National City Bank, the Lee Tire Store and the shoe shop of Katzman brothers were flooded by water, in a second battle, the loss being estimated at $15,000.

The first intimation the audience had of trouble was when the picture was suddenly cut off. An assistant later smoke filled the building. An alert attendant turned on the electric lights and the throng knew the structure was afire.

The machine operators fought to extinguish the flames. Some of the cooler headed members of the audience leaped to the seats and warned the panic stricken crowd to remain calm.

RIVER "CRUISER" TALKS BACK AND IS FINED $10

If you ask Harry C. Johnson of No. 234 Humphrey street, Cambridge, this freedom of the seas stuff is not so good.

Johnson has a thirty-fivefoot cabin cruiser. Yesterday he cruised close to Magazine Beach in the Charles and the police bid him away, fearing for the safety of the bathers.

Johnson held to his rights and paid $10 to day in East Cambridge district court for "wasting" to officer.

DROWNED MAN CARRIED PHOTO OF LOST GIRL

Doctor and Chauffeur Arrested Following Drug Raid in Brighton

Attleboro, Sept. 2.—Instead of one mystery, police investigating the disappearance of sixteen-year-old Gladys Hurn have two to challenge their intelligence today.

Gladys, a schoolgirl, vanished from her home on Holman street ten days ago.

When she went away, whether under duress or her own free will, she left no clue behind.

Now the police are seeking to solve the connection between her disappearance and the death of Ernest L. Bucklin, also of Attleboro, whose body was found in the Pawtucket River at Pawtucket, R. I.

Bucklin was married and the father of two pretty children, yet the police intimate that he committed suicide.

In his clothing they found a newspaper clipping, heavily underscored, which told of the vanishing of the schoolgirl.

They found, also, a group of photographs. Miss Hurn's was said to be among the number. It is stated there was some writing on the back of it.

Of Bucklin, the police of Attleboro and Pawtucket know nothing. He had conducted himself so that his life was not a matter of police record. His family was a happy one, apparently, and his home life agreeable. Mrs. Bucklin, who identified the body, said shen could give no reason for her husband's suicide, if suicide it was.

Miss Hurn never was seen in Bucklin's company, so far as the police can discover. Relatives of the girl say they know of nothing in her life to justify or explain her disappearance.

Bucklin's parents live in Pawtucket.

This is the third time that Gladys has been reported missing from home.

On the two previous occasions she has been found and returned to Attleboro. Now, however, the police fear she is dead. Her photograph and a newspaper clipping telling of her third disappearance were found in the pockets of Ernest L. Bucklin of Attleboro, whose body was picked up in the Pawtucket River.

ART TREASURES LEFT TO BROWN MUSEUM

The will of Thomas Allen, famous Boston artist, was filed in Suffolk County Probate Court today.

To the trustees of the Museum of Fine Arts, of which he was one, Mr. Allen left such objects and pieces from a Japanese collection as are needed to fill certain gaps or vacancies in the Morse collection of pottery.

To the Berkshire Athenaeum of Pittsfield he left his well known painting: "On Guard." Jacob Yonker of Princeton and Dennis Reardon of Boston, employes of Mr. Allen, were left $1,000 and $500 respectively.

ELEVATED WAGE TABLE UNFAIR, SAYS VAHEY

Lower Average When All Employes Are Figured in; Some Get Half-Day

John H. Morse, general auditor of the Boston Elevated, was today accused of making unfair comparisons in arriving at the average pay per day rate of the car men, by Attorney James H. Vahey of the employe's union.

Morse had testified before Judge John D. McLaughlin, chairman of the arbitration board in the wage dispute at the State House, that the average number of days worked by the surface conductors and motormen was 6.44 and that the average pay per day was $5.98.

"Had the auditor included a large number of miscellaneous employes who are affected by the arbitration awards," Vahey charged, "the average pay per day would have been considerably lower.

"All of his tables and testimony given to the board are unfair to the miscellaneous employes," Vahey declared.

Vahey brought out that through an innovation put into effect this year, a large part of the 600 general office workers of the road, housed in the Park Square Building, are allowed to quit during the summer months at noon on Saturdays instead of at 1 p. m., without loss of pay.

RUDNICK DROPS HIS SUPREME COURT PLEA

Joseph Rudnick, wealthy Boston real estate operator, has withdrawn from the Supreme Court his appeal from the decree of Chief Justice Hall of the Superior Court dismissing his petition for the annulment of his marriage to Addie Barron Rudnick.

The petition was based on the contention that at the time of the marriage the woman was mentally unfit to enter into a marriage contract.

Chief Justice Hall granted a long hearing on the case, during which there was much testimony by alienists regarding the woman's mental condition. The chief justice found that Mrs. Rudnick was sane when the marriage occurred and dismissed the petition.

136 CASES OF ALCOHOL SEIZED IN DORCHESTER

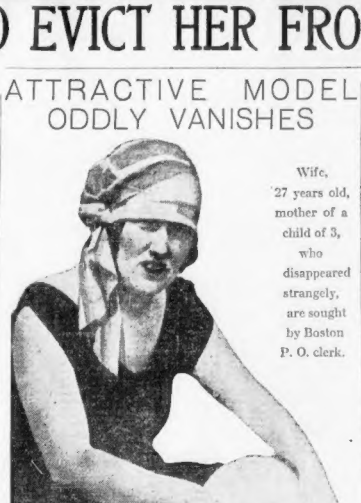

A truck loaded with 136 cases of alcohol and driven by James Eldridge of South Yarmouth was seized by the Boston liquor squad on Granite avenue, Dorchester, today. The truck, said to be owned by Pulsifer's Auto Express Company of Hyannis, will be turned over to the Federal authorities. Eldridge paid a $50 fine in Dorchester Court.

Two youths on the truck were taken to court, but were released when they explained they had been given a lift up from the Cape.

25 ON CONEY OUTING INJURED IN CRASH

New York, Sept. 2.—Twenty-five persons, many of them women and children, bound for an outing at Coney Island, were injured today when a trolley car collided with a large motor truck at Church ave., Brooklyn. The motorman, James Diana, was so seriously injured that he may die.

POSTAL CLERK STARTS HUNT FOR WIFE

Woman and Three-Year-Old Child Vanish Mysteriously From Nantasket Beach

Joseph Shotz, Boston postoffice clerk, of No. 14 Mansfield street, Brighton, has secured a 30-day leave of absence to search for his wife, attractive 27-year-old model, who with her three-year-old daughter, Fern, disappeared from Nantasket Beach.

The woman checked her valuables at the State Bath House. She also checked the effects of her child, but she did not check a considerable sum of money which she had saved to make a trip to Pittsburgh.

Investigation revealed that she had decamped and had used the bathhouse check room as a method of covering up her disappearance.

176 DRUNKS PICKED UP BY BOSTON POLICE

The Boston police collected 176 intoxicated persons over the holidays, not a particularly large number for that period. One hundred and twenty were released, and fifty held for court, of whom ten were women.

During the month of August 501 arrests were made for intoxication in Boston, as against 492 for the same month last year.

MAY SIDETRACK U. S. PLAN FOR ARMS PARLEY

Move Backed by France to Insist That It Be Held Through League of Nations

Geneva, Sept. 2. (A.P.)—The smaller nations of Europe, especially the members of the Little Entente, manifested today their determination to achieve some international pact which they consider will safeguard their security when they selected Foreign Minister Duca, of Rumania, to preside over the important deliberations of the third assembly commission which is to probe the entire problem of disarmament and security.

There seems here to be a distinct movement, under the apparent leadership of France, to insist that all international deliberations for the limitation of armaments shall be held through the mechanism of the League of Nations.

If this movement develops, it may effectually, it is thought, tie American government's reported intention to convoke a new disarmament conference, unless it be definitely linked with the league.

For the moment, at least, the movement is entirely confined to the lobby discussions of the delegates. It affirms the belief that the attempt to make the limitation of armaments wholly dependent of the establishment of a clean-cut pact of security is gathering proof.

Thursday and Friday have been definitely set apart for the assembly debate on disarmament and security, with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Herriot of France the chief speakers.

Greece came out strongly today for the Armenians when she introduced a resolution providing for the transfer of the Armenian refugees to the Caucasus and the creation there of an Armenian national home.

New York Dinner Party of Note Being Staged Tonight

By BETTY ALDEN.

THIS is the evening that Vicomte and Vicomtesse de Frise are playing hosts at a most remarkable dinner party.

Most affairs staged by the nobility are attended only by guests of staggering importance. The guest lists fairly dazzle with all manner of stately titles.

Not so the party being given tonight by the Vicomte and the Vicomtesse at their New York apartment, No. 51 East 58th street.

It all started this way. Some months ago the Vicomte and his wife had their apartment completely re-decorated. Which was quite a task, when one considers all their gorgeous trappings and the perfect setting which these priceless possessions demanded.

Anyway, the de Frises were so delighted with the way in which the workmen accomplished their various tasks, that they decided to give them a dinner.

The host and hostess are having a number of their friends assist them at this evening's party, and in this group, I note, is clover Mrs. Charlotte Fairchild, whose home until a few years ago, was in Boston.

Others who will assist include Princess Marie de Bourbon, Comte and Comtesse Boutheiller Chavigny, Lady Maxwell Witahire, Helen Havemeyer, and Mrs. R. Hinton Perry.

IT was just about a decade ago that Mrs. Fairchild, who was then known as Mrs. Jack Fairchild, startled society by her brave invasion of the field of photographing. At that time the Fairchilds were living in Dedham.

The one-time Charlotte Houston's studio was on Boylston street. And a most attractive place it was, quite rivalling the most perfectly appointed drawing-room.

This unusual matron's venture was a really stupendous success. Nor did the daughter of Francis Houston, the artist, lose even the tiniest bit of social prestige by her enterprise.

A few years ago Mrs. Fairchild moved to Manhattan, where her artistic home at No. 234 East Sixty-fifth street is a rendezvous for persons of both social and artistic prominence.

In addition to Mrs. Fairchild's regular portrait photography, she is making cover designs for well-known periodicals.

Her older daughter, Miss Frances Fairchild, who frequently comes to town for a visit with her Boston friends, is a girl of striking good looks and it was she who posed for the "Statue of Liberty" on the Liberty Loan posters.

IT was a year ago last June that John Fairchild, formerly the husband of Charlotte Fairchild, took as his bride Miss Helen MacLeod. The Fairchilds make their home on Chestnut street.

The children, Frances and Charlotte Fairchild and John C. Fairchild, live with their mother in New York.

WHEELER PAYS VISIT TO OLD HOME TOWN

Lest auld acquaintances be forgot, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana dropped in at his boyhood home in the town of Hudson today.

To make time for his visit to his his old home, the Senator interrupted his militant invasion of New England, where he is campaigning in behalf of his own candidacy for the Vice-Presidency and the candidacy of Senator La Follette for the Presidency of the United States.

His speaking schedule called for only two addresses today, one in Biddeford, Me., and one in Portland. Both will be delivered this evening.

It has been demonstrated that Senator Wheeler is not, physically, one of the strong men of the stump.

It has dawned upon his managers that it is necessary to conserve his strength. Monday's schedule, calling for four speeches, two of them in the open air, drained his resistance and left him weary.

No more than two speeches a day will be allowed him for the future, if his advisors have any weight with him.

It is the plan to have his party return from Maine on Wednesday by way of Manchester, N. H., and Lowell. Thursday and Friday will be given over to Connecticut and Rhode Island cities. On Saturday Senator Wheeler will speak in New York City, and Monday he will begin in up-State cities in the Empire State. From New York State he will turn south to Philadelphia. His speech at Pittsburgh on September 15 will be the last scheduled. Intervening ones have not been specified.

In his speech in Boston Common Wheeler urged his hearers to break the power of Wall Street and return the power of government to the people.

Curley Declares He Will Support Davis

Mayor James M. Curley, who was a guest of honor at the Labor Day observance by the Boston Central Labor Union on Boston Common, declared he would support John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate for president.

"I am a Democrat, I have always been a Democrat," said the Mayor.

The Mayor was asked how strong he thought LaFollette and Wheeler will run in this State. He replied:

"We hope they will get two-thirds of the Republican vote. But I guess they won't.

THEY'RE ALL HET UP OVER PLYMOUTH ROCK

Plymouth, Sept. 2.—"Down with the desecration of Plymouth Rock," said State police, driving guides, photographers, hot dog and post card vendors away from the historic spot.

"Down with State violation of town rights," say the village sages, objecting to the procedure.

The photographers, guides and others chased off the State reservation had town licenses.

The guides, in particular, had to undergo a town examination and were appreciated by the tourists. One tourist, by a caustic letter of criticism, caused the State police to act. Other tourists are objecting that they cannot obtain guides and folk lore authorities conveniently.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB ARE 'NOT AT HOME'

Chicago, Sept. 2.—"Dick" Loeb and "Babe" Leopold stood on their constitutional rights long enough to announce that henceforth they would not "be at home" to representatives of out-of-town newspapers or magazine writers.

Whereupon Warden Wesley Westbrook denied to all newspaper men and women, Chicago ones not excepted, hospitality of Tier No. 6, Cook County jail, where are located the cells of the two prisoners.

Their inability to check upon stories appearing in out-of-town publications was declared to be responsible for their ultimatum. As a consequence of the warden's ruling, the two confessed slayers of "Bobbie" Franks spent the quietest day of their three months' imprisonment. They played indoor baseball, checkers and "baby in the bonnet."

The issue of life and death in his family obliged Judge Caverly, who has under consideration the sentencing of Leopold and Loeb, to forsake his deliberations in their case and hurry to the home of his cousin, R. J. Caverly, Chicago, who was critically ill. He spent some time at his cousin's bedside, then returned to his hotel to resume perusal of the evidence that holds the fate of the two young slayers.

Political Notes

Congressman Peter F. Tague will speak tonight at rallies in the South End, East Boston and Charlestown. He will be at Blackstone square at eight-thirty; Dover and Shawmut avenue at nine; Orient Heights at nine thirty; Central square at ten, and at City square at eleven.

John J. Cummings, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, addressed the Flaherty Post, American Legion, at Wood Island Park, East Boston, and spoke at a number of other points in Boston.

"It took 24 hours to draft the soldier in the World War and it took the government two years to hospitalize him," declared United States Senator David I. Walsh at the American Legion carnival in Franklin. "It is about time to stop thinking about the deeds of ancestors and give credit to the man for what he is today."

Referring to his record in the State Legislature, former Representative J. Watson Lyett, of Belmont, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Eighth district, at rallies in Wakefield, Watertown and Lexington, declared he is the logical candidate to succeed Frederick W. Dallinger. He pledged himself if elected to support President Coolidge.

A vigorous campaign is under way for Max Waldo Cohen of Winthrop, candidate for the Republican nomination in the Ninth district, against Congressman Charles L. Underhill.

Preparation of another series of campaign addresses was begun today by Charles G. Dawes, at Evanston, Ill., while Republican campaign managers set to work mapping out another speaking trip for the party's vice-presidential candidate.

The question of the number of speeches to be made during September and in what cities will be discussed at a conference within a few days between Mr. Dawes and Representative Sanders of Indiana, head of the Republican National Committee's Speakers' Bureau.

SIMMONS WINS POINT IN FIGHT OVER GARAGE

Supreme Court Grants College's Petition Asking for Hearing

A partial victory was won by Simmons College today in its fight to prevent the erection of a three hundred car garage on Queensberry street.

Justice James F. Carroll of the Supreme Court decided to grant a hearing on petitions to review the action of the building commissioner and street commissioners of Boston in granting a license to Samuel W. Flax to erect the garage.

The license has since been assigned to the Queensberry Realty Company.

The State Street Trust Company was permitted by Justice Carroll to intervene as a party plaintiff in the case.

The objection to the garage by the officials of Simmons College was based on the fact that one of their dormitories is located close by.

Passenger Shipping Sunk by Dry Law, Declares Lasker

New York, Sept. 2.—Albert D. Lasker, former chairman of the United States Shipping Board, said today that the American passenger merchant marine "was sunk when liquor was abolished."

He discussed the prospects of American shipping in a pessimistic tone while awaiting the docking of the Leviathan, aboard which were his daughter, Miss Mary Lasker; his sister, Miss Florina Lasker, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. H. C. Warner of Chicago.

They returned from a three months' visit to England and France.

MINISTER JAILED AND FINED AS BOOTLEGGER

Windsor, Ct., Sept. 2.—Admitting before the town court here that he was in debt and wanted to get money enough to bring his family north, Douglass Glass, who claims to have been a minister of the A. M. E. Zion Church in Sumpter County, Georgia, pleaded guilty to three counts of violation of the liquor law.

He was sentenced to 90 days in jail, and fined $200, seventy-five days of the jail sentence being suspended. Glass told the court he had been advised to go into the liquor business by a friend, who sold him a still and instructed him how to use it.

POLICE SEARCH FOR BOMBER IN HAVERHILL

Two Dead, Many Hurt, as Fire Follows Blast in Black Hand Plot

Haverhill, Sept. 2.—Suspecting a Black Hand plot, State and local police today began an investigation of the fire and explosion that caused two deaths and many injuries in the twelve-tenement house, No. 210-218 Washington street.

While the police would make no definite statement, it was understood they believe the explosion was caused by a bomb.

Captain Irving G. Hussey, directing the investigation of the local police, said that something more powerful than gas had caused the explosion, which blew parts of the building across the street.

It followed a fire that broke out in the store of Tony Tripodi, No. 219 Washington street.

While the firemen were on the way to the scene the store was torn apart by an explosion that blew doors one hundred feet, ripped away the foundations of the building and shattered a cement wall a foot and a half thick.

Frank Erenzo, living on the fourth floor, and Tony Trucci, were asphyxiated by gas and their bodies was scorched by the fire. Trucci was killed in bed, but Erenzo was overcome while kneeling by his bedside in prayer.

Captain George Walker of the High street fire station was overcome by gas while fighting the flames and was assisted to the street by firemen. Physicians worked over him for nearly two hours before he regained consciousness. Later he was sent to the hospital.

PROFESSOR KARL HAU IS GRANTED PARDON

Karlsruhe, Germany, Sept. 2.—Karl Hau, one time professor of Roman law in George Washington University, Washington, D. C., who has been serving a life sentence here for the murder of his mother-in-law, Frau Mollier at Baden-Baden in November, 1906, has been pardoned. Trial of Hau created a sensation because of his prominence socially and in university circles in the United States and Germany. He was sentenced to death but the sentence later was commuted. Some months after the trial began Hau's young wife and daughter committed suicide.

YOUTH BRINGS SINKING GIRL TO SAFETY

Tows Her to Shore After She Had Gone Beyond Her Depth at City Point

Lusty lungs saved the life of Miss Della Nash of No. 2 Payson court, South Boston, when she got beyond her depth at City Point.

Johnny Corbett, who lives at No. 10 Dracut street, Dorchester, helped quite a bit, too, for it was he who swam out and towed her in after she went down.

Thousands of bathers were on the beach, some of them much nearer the drowning girl than Corbett, when he heard her cries.

He struck out immediately in the general direction of the shrieks, and on the way tried to rescue a young woman who was not drowning at all, believing it was she who had screamed.

There was only a bubble where Miss Nash had gone down, and Corbett had to dive several times to find her. She is at the City Hospital, and will recover.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

BILL'S been talking things over with me. Bill's nineteen and he's all tangled up with life.

You wouldn't think so to look at him. He's handsome and husky, with the slicken lay-back and the jazziest ankle in his high school crowd. From appearances you'd judge that Bill had nothing on his mind but bandoline.

But you'd judge wrong. For, take it from Bill, he's the World's Greatest Failure. Never does anything right. Never will amount to anything. Everybody picking on him all the time. Thoroughly no good inside. Hates himself. Just pretends to be happy.

Wishes he was dead. What's the use of living, anyway? What's it all about? Lots of goofy theories brotherly love, religion, God—but everybody knows that there's really NOTHING.

Don't be alarmed. Bill isn't a maniac or a Bolshevik or an atheist. Bill is just a normal boy. If you probed the psychos of most nineteen-year-old boys, you'd find exactly this state of affairs. That is—when they're not in love.

During an "affair," the whole world is a hunka French pastry. But between affairs, and they're usually "between," this is their outlook. Particularly when Dad or Mother or the Professor have been giving them a little vigorous advice.

If you have a nineteen-year-old boy hanging around your premises (and God pity you if you haven't!) you have gnashed the proverbial tooth in exasperation over this phase. And so, hoping it may help, I'm handing on what Bill said to me and I said to Bill.

". . . An' it's no use," concluded Bill, after a solid hour of mildew. "There's no use trying. I don't amount to anything and I never will. And nobody understands—"

"Want to know what's the matter with you, Bill?" says I.

What?" grunted Bill, looking thrilled in spite of himself, the way we all do when we're the Main Subject of discussion.

"Just one thing—conceit."

Bill grew bug-eyed and purple around the edges. Then he slumped back in his chair. "Aw! you're kidding me. Every one kids me. I get so sick——"

"No, I'm not kidding you. I mean it. The trouble with you is that you're carrying such an overhead of conceit it's actually making you sick."

"Why—I'm not either!" snorted Bill, with genuine indignation. "Haven't I jus' been tellin' how I hate myself and wish I'd never been born?"

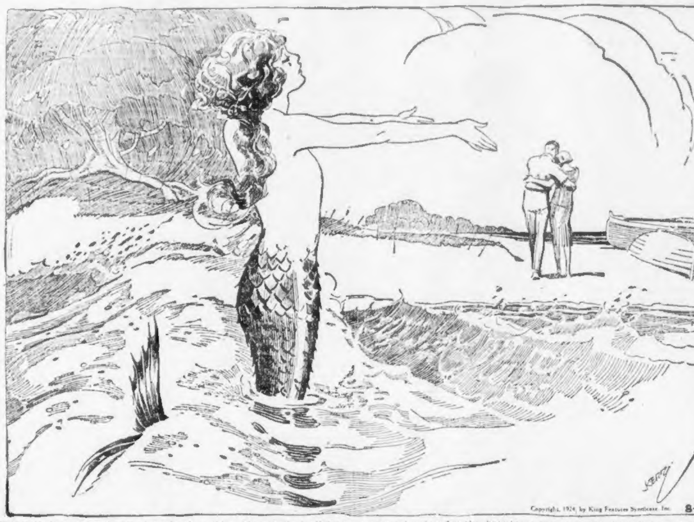

"Sure you have. You've been talking steady for an hour about how you hate yourself. And every time I've met you in the last year you've been doing the same thing. Pawing yourself over and weeping salty tears over the remains.

You do the same thing with your mother. And your dad. And the professor. And your Best Girl as long as she will stand for it. And every time any one looks at you or anything happens to you, you see signs of someone working off a special grudge against you. If that isn't conceit——"

"Well, if you're not stuck on yourself, Bill, I don't know tanglefoot when I see it. You're so stuck on yourself you can't pry yourself loose with a crowbar. You never see an inch beyond the one big idea—Yourself. It doesn't matter whether you're kissing yourself or cussing yourself, Bill; as long as you concentrate on Yourself and Yourself alone, you're not going to be a particle of good to the rest of the world, and you're going to suffer like the dickens from loneliness and misunderstanding and—You."

The Poor Fish

DRAWN BY KERR

POOR little mermaid! All alone in the cold, cold sea! And all Summer she has had such a wonderful time watching the mortals as they disport themselves in her briny home and wishing and wishing that she, too, could be like them and have someone to caress her and love her. But it is not to be! Mortals and mermaids can never be friends.

So she watches and wonders, and her poor little heart aches with a great longing for the happiness that can never be hers. No wonder the big, salty tears course their way unheeded down her lovely cheeks.

It's enough to make anybody weep to see the couples happily walking by the waves, saying their farewells to the scenes of their Summer happiness. After all, though half human, she knows in her sad little heart that always and ever she must be just—A poor, lonesome little fish!

HOW TO BE GRACEFUL

By Maria Jeritza

"WHEN you do dance," said Floriel to Perdita, in Shakespeare's "Winter Tale." "I wish you a wave o' sea, that you might ever do nothing but that."

How well these words express our joy in beautiful dancing. And how natural it is to liken graceful undulations of the dance to wave movements.

Dancing in one form or another is probably as old as the human race. It is the instinctive expression of thought and emotion in movement, just as singing is an instinctive exclamation of feeling.

If you can possibly afford to do so, I would suggest that you take up the study of dancing for the sake of the grace, beauty, enjoyment and health. You may prefer to specialize later on in any one of the myriad graceful forms that dancing takes such as classics, ballet, Spanish and folk dancing. Or you may be content to excel in so-called "ball-room" dancing.

But as a foundation there can be no doubt that at least six months should be given to mastering the exercises that ballet dancers are given from the time they begin to learn their art. Each of these exercises is designed to limber the muscles and make them strong and symmetrical, giving them graceful agility.

These exercises are practiced faithfully every day by all great dancers just as a prima donna practices her scales each day and a fine pianist his finger exercises.

I am going to describe for you a figure from a Spanish dance. And, by the way, Spain is the home of the modern dance. Nowhere are there more graceful dancers to be found.

Stand erect with your back and neck straight, your arms at your sides, your weight on your left foot, your right leg and foot slightly extended to the front. Sliding forward on your right foot, kneel with your weight on your left foot on count one.

Now circle your trunk and arms to the left back, right and to the front again on count 2 to 7, keeping your elbows unbent and letting your wrists lead your hand. On count 8 turn to first or standing position.

Now reverse that movement—that is, standing with your weight on your right foot, slide forward and kneel on your left foot, and go through the arm and trunk circling movement six times, but this time circle from right to left and return to position on count eight.

This exercise possesses the advantage that so many dancing movements have of exercising nearly all the muscles of the body, so you may well add it to the list that you practice each morning before you open the window.

LESSON FOR MOTHERS

By W. A. McKeever

A FIRM, vibrant body is as much an essential for your little girl as a clear, alert mind. Indeed, the two belong normally together.

Nothing is so effective a preventive of the fatigue we call "tired feeling" as a muscular development. This rule applies to all ages, but especially to mature years.

"My mother never permitted me to learn to do anything about the house. Work is for the servants. You may have enough of that to do in future years, she would remark. So I grew up a soft, do-nothing doll." Thus testifies a woman of 35, always weary and never able to endure even a small day's work about the house.

Apply the lesson now, dear mothers. It is almost impossible for an adult to rebuild a loose body so mistreated from underexercise during childhood. While the little girl's body is young and green proceed to build it firm and solid, just as you attend carefully to the development of her mind. You deserve a better fate, and daughter deserves a better memory of you than to have to recall that you permitted her to mature a soft and inert physique.

Exercise does not well take care of itself any more than does the mind training. While an hour or two of common work to fit the particular age seems to me to be an ideal kind of physical training, if your station in life is too proud, then go after the matter in some more genteel manner.

Walking as an exercise for girls is a help but it is not enough. Running is better, so also are tennis and milder form of basket ball and volley ball. But when you come down to matters of fact, it is regular and systematic exercise rather than the occasional and the spasmodic that your girl must have.

PARIS SENDS NEW IDEAS

PARIS—Tea on a warm afternoon in the delightful garden of the Chateau de Madrid is a gay and festive ceremony. There one is certain to see the very latest mode interpreted in delicate frocks. Two models recently worn there are illustrated. On the left is a tube-dress of printed georgette in a striking, cubist pattern. The white ground is well covered with rectangular patches of dark blue, with here and there a huge, flat rose in brilliant cerise. At the lower edge of the frock is a circular flounce surrounding the skirt, with another just above ending at each side after crossing the front. A narrow scarf of the material is attached at the shoulders with long ends floating gracefully behind.

On the right is a figured foulard in light colors and a small pattern. The little gown is very simple and tailored in style with a narrow roll collar and short sleeves. Flat side panels are attached at each hip and give a swinging movement which tends to soften the severity of line.

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE By Elenore Meherin

Follow Here the Joys and Sorrows of This Boston Girl You All Meet Every Day

AFTER a long pause Miss Simonds said:, "I am hoping very much, Miss Bryce, that you will be able to explain. I have called you here on a most distasteful matter. Now—if it turns out as I trust, we shall forget entirely this interview—"

Unconsciously Chickie's head raised. Irene, of course! And bringing that pitiful affair to the superintendent! She said, abruptly, "Yes!"

"An anonymous letter was sent to me some time ago, making certain accusations against you, Miss Bryce. Naturally, I paid little attention to it. Then rumors began to circulate among the students of your class. Are you aware of them, Miss Bryce?"

Many Rumors

Chickie said, with a touch of dignity: "There are so many rumors, Miss Simonds."

"This one concerns you. It is very grave. Charges have been made. They are so damaging we were forced to look into them. Let me make sure, Miss Bryce—"

Then Chickie knew. She took a deep, noiseless breath. She put on a brave, flickering smile to hide the tightness in her thoat.

"You are not married?"

The smile deepened for now a wave of heat swept up and half engulfed her. "Oh, no—"

"Were you ever married?"

"No—"

"Is it true that you have a child?"

Chickie looked straight before her. She pressed her palms on the table and she said in a strange, unnatural quiet: "Why yes—yes—"

"Then the charges are true?"

"Why yes—"

Miss Simonds' color dropped visibly until her cheeks were a leaden white and her eyes stood out shocked and incredulous.

"Are you aware of the admission you are making, Miss Bryce?"

"Oh, yes."

"Your child is dead?"

"Ah——" Chickie's lips parted. They kept moving. Then she bit them harshly together. She said, looking at those strange white hands of hers, pressed against the table, "Yes."

"Can it be true also, Miss Bryce, that a question was raised as to the cause of its death?"

"No. It died."

"I understand there was a trial."

Chickie drew her hands to her lap. She was numb.

"Was there a trial, Miss Bryce? There was doubt as to the cause of the death? Do you not wish to answer?"

Became Excited

Then Chickie became excited and a little wild. She leaned across the table. She moistened her lips: "No! It died—there was no trial— An inquest, and it was proven! And every one knows that it died! The doctor testified. I brought it to him and said it was dead. It was weak, and he knew it would die. All that came out—the whole thing. There was no doubt left—there wasn't any at all!"

She moved back then, her hands quiet: "That's all—that's all!"

"Who was the doctor?"

"Dr. Emerson of Moppett. Why, you can write to him—you can learn it all——"

"How long ago was this?"

"Two years last January——"

"When you entered this hospital, Miss Bryce, you made no mention of this episode. Nor did your sponsors. You represented yourself as a girl of unblemished character. You really gave fraudulent references——"

"I had to——"

"No—I don't think so. I'm sorry. Very, very sorry. I would gladly aid you, Miss Bryce. But you did a grievous wrong coming here under false colors. You have preferred your interest to the interest of the institution——"

"Oh, no—! Oh, I didn't."

"I fear that you did. I dislike intensely the step forced upon me. But I have eighty-five student nurses in my charge. Whatever my personal feelings may be, I cannot sacrifice their welfare to yours.

Discipline Harmed

"Your presence here, now that this has become known, is undermining the discipline of the nursing school. Some of the students are very resentful. It will be better for you and for all of us to end the investigation quietly. I must ask this of you, Miss Bryce. I must ask you to resign now——"

Chickie sat upright, the blood draining from her heart. She stared at Miss Simonds, aware that her lips shook. She waited for them to quiet. "You ask me to resign, Miss Simonds? You mean this? I'm to leave?"

"I see no other way, Miss Bryce. You are to leave."

Chickie's Fight

It was three years since that night in June when Chickie took her dog and pressed her face against his head, whispering: "Ho I know it, dog—it's so!" And she knew herself alone in the world with the heaviest cross a world can fashion laid upon her shoulders.

Three years she had carried it. Now she was grown strong under the weight. And in this moment strong enough to throw it off—strong enough to dash it to the ground.

She sat very still, within her a leaping storm. She knew that she must fight—and she would. She waited for her words to come.

She temporized: "You think I must resign, Miss Simonds?"

"Is there any need to repeat it, Miss Bryce? I regret this deeply."

"It is a great deal to ask. It means so much to me—so much. Isn't there some way to avoid it? My record for these twenty months here is stainless. Shouldn't I be judged by that, and not by the past?"

"You force me into a difficult position. I must do what seems best for the whole. I have really no choice in the matter. You can surely understand that this revelation makes your further presence here practically impossible. You would be pointed out; you would be whispered about. You would hurt the reputation of every girl in the school.

Chickie drew in her breath with a rough gasp. "How could I do that?"

"Why do you insist on argument? You must realize that we have to keep our standards above reproach. Can we permit it to be said that the nursing profession offers refuge to girls of doubtful character?"

Not Doubtful

Chickie half whispered: "Doubtful? I? Oh, I am not doubtful—I never was. Should no refuge be offered? Oh, none? You know, Miss Simonds, I am as good as many girls. My mind is not corrupt. I have striven hard. I have never stinted in all these months. I am glad to serve. . . ."

And she grew excited. Her words came in broken phrases, with short, hard breaths between. She had to stop now and then because of a twisting at her lips. And she had to press her hands because they were knocking against the table.

And she told how it was life to her. How her father counted on it, and every one, and she had a right to prove herself.

"So I can't resign, Miss Simonds! I'm not going to resign. I've come here to serve; to pour out my life, and I am going to do this, and no one has a right to deny me the chance. Not you, or any one"

She stood up a little, leaning on her hands. Her eyes flamed, and a white, tragic line came about her mouth.

"Sit down, Miss Bryce! Control yourself. I would be glad to have you stay. I am sorry the charges have been brought. But there are girls here—many of them very young. I can't jeopardize their future in order to make yours."

She sank down, then asked, with a desperate calm: "How can I hurt them, Miss Simonds? How does it harm them if I am allowed to be of use in the world?" She wouldn't wait for an answer.

"I don't see how the world can benefit by my defeat, or how other girls are aided if I am crushed. I don't see that at all!"

"You harm these girls because they may figure that you broke the laws and are honored. So they may do the same. And you harm them because those who know the deeds of our life may conclude that all nurses are likewise uncertain in their standards. Why should a girl of pure character be smirched by another's past?"

World's Judgment

"What I did can't smirch any one else, Miss Simonds. And because people judge us evil doesn't make us so."

"But we can suffer because of the world's judgment, Miss Bryce. The young students would suffer if they, as a class, should be judged of unsound moral fiber. Neither you nor any other individual has a right to bring upon them such a censure."

Chickie grew suddenly scarlet and bewildered. She pressed her closed hand against her mouth.

Miss Simonds said, "So let the matter end, Miss Bryce."

She answered, almost to herself: "What will Jonathan do? Oh, there is my father and mother—"

"Did you think of them three years ago, Miss Bryce?"

"I am thinking of them now. I can't undo what is past. But I can make the future. I thought I had a right to do this, Miss Simonds, I thought I had a right to come here and prove myself—as much right to come back as you or any one has to go on. Oh, only cowards give up. And it is flouting God and truth and everything to sink down forever in the shadow of a wrong.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

MARTHA LEE BY RADIO

By Martha Lee

Broadcast From Station WNAC, for WNAC American Woman's Club.

The First of a Series of Talks on Washing by Electricity

THE first cleaning of clothing by a wet or washing method was made in the running water of a river. The women of primitive times carried their soiled garments to the edge of a stream, and either held or fastened them down with a rock while they allowed the action of the water to wash out the dirt.

Then the women gradually discovered that laying the clothing on a smooth stone, and pounding with another rock or flat stick semed to remove the dirt more easily. The next step was to build out into a river a sloping, narrow platform, and rub the wash on this wooden surface. Soon they made grooves or ridges in these platforms, and thus was evolved the modern popular "washboard"—which will soon, I believe, be as much of a discarded antique as tallow dips and warming pans!

Friction Idea

All of these early and traditional methods were based on the idea of friction, either by rubbing the pieces on a board or pounding thereon with some form of paddle. This rub-a-dub-dub method persisted for centuries, not because it was the best way to remove soil from clothing, but because no one until recent times, studied to find some new and more efficient washing principles.

But surely now every modern woman will throw the old rub-a-dub practices out of her mind, just as she will throw the drudgery washboard out of her laundry! No housekeeper today persists in roasting her Sunday dinner over a spit when she can buy an insulated oven, or in using a dirt-scattering corn broom when she can procure a dust-absorbing vacuum cleaner.

So, too, where is the housekeeper of this progressive year who will refuse to understand the new, slightly different, but still very simple principles which make machine washing a success? Even when you did rub the clothes with a bar of soap on a washboard it was not the rubbing, but the alkali or other chemical agent released from the soap which really cleaned.

Value of Soap

When you used a cake of soap on the washboard you were obtaining only about 10 per cent. of the value of the soap as a cleanser: when you dissolve that soap and use it in a solution, or use a solution prepared with other chemical agents which attack grease, you secure their full 100 per cent. value in "cutting" body soil and setting the dirt particles loose in the wash water.

For successful machine washing you must lay aside the idea of using soap in cake or solid form, and realize that soap must be cut up and dissolved so that every particle blends with the wash water. All bar soap should be shaved or cut fine, added to cold water, and brought slowly to boil until the liquid is clear and of an amber shade.

Or powdered soap ground into minute particles may be purchased which will save the labor of hand cutting and dissolve evenly and quickly. Possibly such powdered soap is the best of all for washing machine use.

Washing Solutions

1. Washing solution for general washing (soft water):

One cup powdered soap or 1 bar best white laundry soap.
Two tablespoons borax.
Two quarts water.

Dissolve shaved soap in hot water heated slowly, cool and add borax. If powdered soap is used, mix to a thick cream with cold water, then add hot and dissolve perfectly. Use in proportion of one cup of solution to each load of clothes. This may be used safely on common flannels and on coarse colored goods, as kitchen aprons, men's shirts, etc.

2. Washing solution for fine flannels or colored goods:

One large bar best white soap.
Two tablespoons borax.
Four quarts water.

Dissolve soap in heated water, cool and add borax. Use in proportion of one cup of solution to each load of lightweight flannels, or double this strength for heavy blankets. (If purity of powdered soap is certain, make as in solution.)

3. Soap bark solution for very delicate colors or black fabrics:

Four cups "soap bark" (bought at druggist).
One gallon of water.

Boil slowly 20 minutes, strain and use this emulsion in place of soap solution, rinsing well.

4. Washing solution for very greasy colored clothes.

One-half bar white laundry soap or about 3 ounces soap powder.
One-half cup turpentine.
One gallon lukewarm water.

Dissolve soap and add turpentine. Use in proportion of about ½ cup of solution to each washing load as of greasy overalls, shirts, or colored fabrics affected with grease, paint, vaseline, varnish, washing in lukewarm water only.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

THERE is no questioning Tom's generosity and the royal ease with which he expresses it. I found myself recalling the days long ago when Jim and I rented Tom's studio apartment for an absurdly small sum and found our landlord ever ready to endow us with some new benefit. At the time I had come to feel almost smothered by Tom Mason's favor, but through Jim's loyalty to his old friend, the situation had worked out without making too heavy a demand on my patience.

Ann Lisle

There had been nothing, however, to enable Daisy Gordon to figure out the correct valuation of Tom's princely generosities. And now I wondered if it would be possible to give Irma Warren a standard of measurement by which she could properly appraise Tom Mason. It looked fairly hopeless, and as we rode along I felt tired of the perpetual matching of wits and guarding something precious which seemed to be the corollary of knowing Tom Mason.

All the while I was struggling with the realization that I was again booked for a struggle with Tom's inflated ego. Tom himself was busy making plans for the comfort and happiness of Irma and me.

His magnificent gesture of consideration was wide enough to take in my apartment. When we arrived there Tom himself carried in Irma's small baggage, tipped the elevator boy and chauffeur for bring up the trunk which was strapped on the rear of the Haldane car, and had the luggage settled in my guest room and unstrapped in the shortest possible space of time.

And then as he fairly propelled me from my guest room, where we had together established Irma, Tom put his easy explanation of what had so annoyed me:

"I act as if I were a member of the family, don't I, Donna Anna?" Before I could reply he went on hastily: "I always mean to cure myself of calling you 'Donna Anna,' but it does express you so perfectly—What I started to say, however, is this—You know I'm Jimmie's oldest friend and as such I like to stand by you whenever you will let me."

Laughing at my own ungraciousness, I replied a trifle testily:

"You don't give anyone else a chance——"

"Line forms this way," replied Tom, linking his arm in mine and leading me down the hall and out of earshot of Irma Warren. "Now listen, my dear lady, you are a straight-laced little Puritan who is bound to have a struggle over something every day in this modern world of ours. You cannot forget that once upon a time 'A new face—a new fancy' was my motto and coat-of-arms. Must I tell you again? Well, I will. I am as staid and settled as your own sweet self today. And Irma Warren is the cause of it all. Would you send me back to my evil ways and evil days?"

His scoffing tone annoyed me, but made it harder than ever for me to deal with his unregenerate soul. Suddenly I knew in my heart that no matter how Tom loves Irma and devotes himself to her, he is not ashamed of nor sorry for his record before he met her.

"You aren't a bit ashamed of your past!" I gasped, jerking my arm away and turning in the wide front hall to face him.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

NEITHER is correct, since it is not good form to announce an engagement by an engraved card. The best form is for her to tell her relatives and friends who live in her city and to write to those who live out of town. Then, if the father wishes, he may mail or telephone this formal notice to the newspapers: "Mr. John Doe announces the enngagement of his daughter, Dorothy, to Mr. Richard Roe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roe, of No. 40 Pierce avenue.

It is also proper and delightful for the father to gather together a few of the nearest relative and friends for some kind of social gathering—a dinner, tea, or an informal evening party—and make the announce at this party.

However, the first way of announcing the good news—by telling or writing the news—is the best form, the simplest and the most natural. The happy news will spread fast enough to those whom it concerns.

Puzzle Winners To Be Announced Very Soon

At last we have sorted out the thousands of answers received in the puzzle contest. In a day or two we will announce the prize winners.

Sorting and checking the roomful of letters was a terrible job and Little Northumberland is pretty well worn out. But he's game to tackle another contest at that.

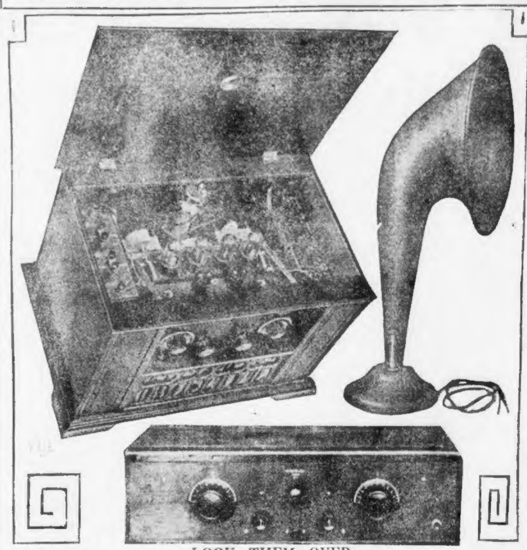

Announcement of winners in the portable set contest will also come soon. Give us a chance!

LOOK THEM OVER

Some lucky fans will be elated to receive these first-class prizes in the portable contest that closes tonight. The DeForest D-13 Reflex Radiophone (with top up) is first prize. The other set, above, is a Crosley Trirdyn, second prize. Third prize is the loud speaker.

CONTEST ENDS, NEW ONE TO BEGIN

Tonight Winds Up Portable Sets; Another Series of Puzzles Shortly

This is not a time signal, but you Portable Radio fans are now at the eleventh hour. When the last wave subsides on the air tonight the Boston American portable radio contest becomes a closed book. Tonight's lists will be the last considered in the contest.

Little Northumberland is glad it's over. He's got fish-eyes from reading lists and he looks like a second-hand dishrag. Yesterday he almost came up to a total end just through the contest.

He was loaded up with letters that were to be sorted out downstairs one floor below the radio room.

"Go round the corner and take the third door to your left," we told him. "Walk right down. Elevators were made for people—and you ain't."

Well, the Boob took the fourth door and stepped right into the elevator shaft. He bounced two stories.

"You want to be careful when you're going down those stairs," he told us when he came back. "That first step is a bad one." If "Northy" had been human he'd have been killed.

Now we have another pleasant surprise for you puzzle fans and portable fans. Just as soon as it is ready, we start another series of puzzles. This contest will be a different puzzle contest than the one before, but it will be just as enjoyable.

Get out your shears, unwrap your patience and prepare to don the old thinking cap.

PHOTOGRAPHER AT WNAC TONIGHT

It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody some good.

Last week's storm must have been one of that kind, for it blew Jack Nugent, Boston American staff photographer, into something snappy to talk about tonight at the regular Tuesday evening concert by the Boston American Philharmonic Orchestra at WNAC, the Shepard Stores Station.

Jack's set never worked very well until the storm blew his antenna down and swung his lead-in up on Mrs. Next-Door's clothes line. He got stations left and right, then.

But he'll tell you about it tonight, along with a few stories about his job, which is one of the interesting ones.

William F. Dodge, conductor of the orchestra, has arranged one of the usual top-notch programs.

SAXOPHONE PLAYERS BEWARE THIS PAIR

If all saxophones could be played as the soloist of the Marine Band played it the other night this would be a happier and better world for writers, at least.

Which thought is inspired by two writer friends who recently sought a distant camp in the Maine woods to collaborate in writing short stor. They had no sooner started the introduction to their first story than into the camp drifed a youth with a saxophone.

A few days later the writers had hunted up a cabin on an island in the center of a Maine lake. Any canoeist who approaches the island will be shot if he admits that he has a saxophone with him.

ANOTHER FISHING VESSEL GALE VICTIM

One of the vessels caught in the hurricane of a week ago was the fishing schooner Corinthian, Capt. Horton Manson, which tied up at the South Boston Fish Pier with five dories smashed, her deck fittings damaged and with loss of much of her fishing gear.

Bonus Questions Answered

Questions concerning the world war bonus are answered daily in this column. If you are unable to call personally at the bonus information bureau at No. 92 Summer street, mail your inquiry.

Answers are based on the most authoritative information available. However, no full legal interpretation of the bonus act has been issued.

D. M., ROXBURY.

Q.—I enlisted Oct. 7, 1917, went overseas July 10, 1918, returned July 13, 1919, and was honorably discharged July 22, 1919. What will be the amount of my insurance certificate at my present age of 28 years?

A.—Service credit is allowed between April 5, 1917, and July 1, 1919, with a maximum credit of $625 for both home and overseas service. This amount represents your adjusted service credit, which at your age of 28 years will make the face value of the 20-year paid-up certificate about $1,580.

V. E. L., PROVIDENCE.

Q.—I have been unable to obtain a bonus application in Providence, and would thank you to send me one. Where can blanks be obtained here?

A.—A blank is being mailed to you. Supplies of bonus blanks are now available for distribution at all post offices, posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Red Cross branches and army and naval stations.

F. M. C., SOUTH BOSTON.

Q.—How much will I receive as a bonus for all home service from June 13, 1917, to Aug. 5, 1919?

A.—You will receive the maximum service credit of $500 for all home service, payment of which will be in the form of a 20-year paid-up policy having a face value of about $1,250.

C. F. L., LOWELL.

Q.—I served five months in the navy and seven months in the army, receiving an honorable discharge from both branches. How shall I make out my application so as not to lose more than 60 days? How much will my bonus amount to?

A.—After your application is received in Washington the proper computation will be made from your service records on file there, and not more than 60 days will be deducted under the bonus law. For home service you will receive $1 a day after the first 60 days, and $1.25 a day if your service in the navy was afloat, but not on a receiving ship. The total of this credit when multiplied by 2½ will give the face value of the 20-year paid-up policy to be issued to you.

M. H. C., PLYMOUTH.

Q.—Please advise me if it is necessary to communicate with the Veterans Bureau at Washington before making application?

A.—No. Simply fill out an application and send it to the proper office in Washington, which you will find in the instruction sheet accompanying each blank.

W. J. S., LAWRENCE.

Q.—I enlisted June 23, 1917, served overseas from Sept. 27, 1917, until Jan. 10, 1919. How much bonus am I entitled to?

A.—From the length of your service, it would appear that your service credit is about $610. The bonus will be payable to you in the form of a twenty-year paid up insurance certificate with face value of approximately $1,560.

Is Your Back a Handicap?

Do You Suffer Constant Backache—Feel Old and Worn Out? Then Follow the Advice of These Boston Folks.

IS a bad back keeping you upset and miserable? Every day bring lameness, stiffness and torturing twinges? Are you so tired, nervous and dispirited it seems you can never be well again?

Surely, then, you should be finding out what is wrong!

More than likely it's your kidneys. Your kidneys, you know, are constantly filtering impurities from the blood. But weak, sluggish kidneys slow up in their work, allowing poisons to accumulate until there's an upsetting of the whole system.

Then comes constant backache, sharp, stabbing pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities. You feel tired, weak, nervous and depressed.

Don't let this unhappy condition go on! Help your sluggish kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Boston folks recommend them. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's, Say These Boston Folks:

MRS. MARTHA CORBIN, 19 Bennington St., East Boston, says: "My back was lame and when I got down I could hardly straighten. At each quick move sharp pains dug in deeper. I tired quickly and I was nervous, too. My kidneys acted too freely. Doan's Pills from Patton's Drug Store cured me and I have never been troubled since."

CHARLES JACKSON, Retired Contractor, 338 Meridian St., East Boston, says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and caused lame back. When I got down it was hard to raise on account of the misery in my back. My kidneys acted too often and I had such dizzy spells I almost fell. I used Doan's Pills, and two boxes cured me." (Statement given July 14, 1922.)

On October 6, 1923, Mr. Jackson said: Doan's Pills cured me of kidney trouble and I am glad to confirm my statement."

ANITA'S BETROTHAL MYSTIFIES FRIENDS

(International News Reel Photo)

ANITA BLAINE DAMROSCH.

Daughter of Walter Damrosch, noted composer and New York Symphony Orchestra conductor, and granddaughter of James G. Blaine. Announcement and denial of her engagement to Robert Littell has her friends all up in the air.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 2.—Is Anita Blaine Damrosch going to be married or not?

Society folk here would like to know definitely one way or the other.

Her engagement has been announced and denied so many times her friends are quite put out about it.

Anita is the daughter of Walter Damrosch, composer and noted conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra.

Now her parents say she is going to marry Robert Littell, an editor of the New Republic. She returns from France September 5.

Miss Damrosch is a granddaughter of James G. Blaine, Secretary of State under Presidents Garfield and Harrison, and of Dr. Leonard Damrosch, founder of the New York Symphony Orchestra and the Oratorio Societies of New York.

Mr. Littell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Littell of New York and a grandson of the founder of Littell's Living Age.

2 Deaths Laid to Betrayal of Ku Klux Klan

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Police say the explanation of the Ku Klux Klan duel in Durham avenue on Sunday night, in which two men were shot dead and two others seriously wounded, is that Edward Obertean, one of the victims, was marked for death for disclosing Klan secrets to the police and that Thomas H. Austin, the second victim, was brought to Buffalo from a Southern city to do the slaying.

OFFICER IS KICKED AND BEATEN

Newton Policeman Attempting Arrest Is Assailed by Companions of Prisoner

Patrolmen Edward Foley of the Newton police, while attempting to arrest Frank A. Desantis of No. 30 Jackson street, Newton Centre, for disturbing the peace, on Langley road, Newton Centre, was set upon by the four companions of the man, brutally assaulted and kicked into unconsciousness. All then, including the man he had attempted to arrest, made their escape.

Upon regaining consciousness Foley sent in a call for assistance. He had recognized Desantis and Domin Farino of No. 31 Walnut Hill, Newton Centre, and today warrants were secured for both men. In the melee his clothing was torn to shreds and his eye was blackened.

In Newton Court before Judge Bacon, Desantis was charged with disturbing the peace and with assault upon an officer, and Farino, with rescuing a prisoner and with assault upon an officer. Their cases were continued to tomorrow.

It is alleged that the men were boisterous and refused to cease their activities when ordered by the officer.

LINE CLAIM MUST BE PROVED

Bona-Fide Members Decide List Is Being Carried Too Far Beyond Ship's Capacity

Plymouth, Sept. 2.—"There are only a few of us left."

That is likely to be the accepted form of greeting among bona fide descendants of the Mayflower in the near future.

At today's session of the congress of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants an amendment was proposed providing that the historian-general be instructed to examine the lines of descent of all those claiming Mayflower ancestry.

Nothing unclubby was said, but the intent and purport of the amendment was plain.

WILL WEED 'EM OUT.

Too many Mayflower descendants are cluttering up the historic landscape to please the all-wool-yard-wide offspring of the passengers on that celebrated ferry boat.

In some quarters there long has been a feeling either that the Mayflower was grossly overloaded or its passengers unusually prolific.

The constitution as it now stands provides that "no person shall be a member of the General Society who is not a member in good standing of a State society."

MUST PROVE DESCENT.

The amendment adds "and no person shall be a member of a State society whose line of descent has not been approved by the historian general."

"We have no reason to suspect that the rolls of the society have been loaded up with the name of either Thomas Actual Mayflower descendants," said General Secretary Monroe.

"But the historian general has not been examining ancestral claims.

BAY STATE LEADS.

"More to forestall any attempt to counterfeit such claims than to meet a situation already arisen, we are considering this resolution relative to the amendment."

Massachusetts, naturally, is especially productive in the matter of Mayflower descendants.

Among them are Mrs. John Cassell; Mrs. Randolph Frothingham, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Arthur C. Walworth, George E. Bowman, J. Colby Bassett, the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, Ethel B. Davis, Mrs. Rudolph Weld, Mrs. Channing H. Cox and Mrs. John Holmes Morison.

Bootblack New City's Lawyer Is Too Busy to Find a Wife

ASST. CORPORATION COUNSEL PETROCELLI, AS HE WAS AND IS

B. Nicholas Petrocelli Is Shining Example and Also a Good Catch

Who says a poor boy has no opportunity to rise these days? Meet B. Nicholas Petrocelli, assistant corporation counsel of the city of Boston.

A few years ago "Nick," as he is still known to his many friends, was a newsboy selling Boston Americans and also a bootblack.

Today Assistant Corporation Counsel Petrocelli, the youngest man ever appointed to that position, by the way, frequently has the honor of representing the great city of Boston at official functions.

There is only one thing he has overlooked in his rapid rise, and that is a wife. He is too busy, he says.

Seated in his office on the tenth floor of the Lawyers' Building, Beacon and Somerset streets, the assistant corporation counsel admitted he had not even a prospect in sight.

HE SOLD AMERICANS.

Not so very many years "Nick" was selling Americans at the corner of Ruggles and Tremont streets, Roxbury. He was attending the Dearborn Grammar School, Dearborn street, Roxbury, at the time.

After he was graduated from this school he entered the Boston Latin School and needing more money he obtained employment in a bootblack establishment in the old Equitable Building, now the First National Bank Building at the corner of Milk and Devonshire streets, for $1.50 a day. He worked from 7 in the morning until 7 at night.

When he was not very busy he was studying Latin. One day the late Governor Samuel W. McCall entered the establishment to have his shoes shined. He asked "Nick" to serve him.

The Latin book was tossed aside temporarily into a chair next to the late Governor. Picking the book up Mr. McCall wanted to know who was studying Latin and when informed that "Nick" was he urged the young man to keep it up.

The studying was kept up spurred on every so often by Governor McCall, who became "Nick's" customer. Boston College was the next step in the advance march of "Nick" and he was so entered after graduating from Latin School.

From this school he entered Harvard Law School, from which he was called for his services and he entered the naval branch.

Following his discharge from the service he was appointed by Mayor Curley to the position of assistant corporation counsel at a salary of $3,000 a year.

STORES IN ROXBURY RIFLED

Thieves Bore Through Cellar Walls; Get $1500 in Liggett's Drug Store

Boring through several basement walls, thieves broke into a number of stores on Dudley street, Roxbury, early today, obtaining $1,500 from the safe of Liggett's drugstore.

The other places were ransacked, but apparently nothing of value was taken.

Entrance was first effected into the basement of the office at No. 584 Columbia road. The thieves then cut through the basement wall to the Woolworth Five and Ten-Cent Store adjoining at No. 773 Dudley street.

Here they opened cash registers and attempted to force a small safe without success.

They then cut through the basement wall into the Liggett store at No. 781 Dudley street. Tipping over a safe they ripped it open and took all the cash it contained. The robberies were discovered when the stores opened for business today.

TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYER TAKES RUM VESSEL

New London, Sept. 2.—The ocean going tug Underwriter, one of the largest tugs operating in New England waters, is tied up under guard today. Her captain and crew of eighteen will face Commissioner Mathewson to explain why the Underwriter was carrying 1,000 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey valued at $35,000. With the capture of the Underwriter comes a new development in the Federal war against rum running off Block Island. The boat was taken by the U. S. S. which is the torpedo boat destroyer Cassin, sent by the Navy Department to the Coast Guard service.

PINKSTON FUND $30.50 RICHER BY K. C. GIFT

The fund started by Arthur Brisbane for Willis Pinkston of the United States fighting ship Richmond, is the richer today by $30.50 as the result of the outing of Ausonia Council, Knights of Columbus, at Waushakum Park, Framingham.

The money was collected by Joseph Seminara, assisted by Grand Knight Joseph Santosuosso, Past Grand Knight Vincent Brogna, Recorder Charles Velardo, Master Minichiello and Chairman Paul C. Dinezio. There were 57 contributors.

Signalman Pinkston, for whom the fund is being raised from coast to coast, was high up in the steel tower of the Richmond in the night when he sighted a faint glimmer of light far away and the Richmond changed her course and picked up the plucky Italian flier, Locatelli.

"I have been a reader of Mr. Brisbane's 'Today' column in the Boston American," Mr. Seminara said, "ever since its first appearance. I find it newsy, well informed, educational, inspirational.

"To have hit upon Pinkston as one of the heroes of the around-the-world flight, and especially of the rescue of Locatelli, was just like Brisbane. The thought might have come to others in a day or two but Brisbane saw the importance of the incident immediately and gave the country something to think about.

"Our fund has one new angle which we hope may meet with Mr. Brisbane's approval. We want the money divided 50-50 between Pinkston and the other members of the crew of the Richmond.

"The way we look at it is that it merely happened to be Pinkston's good luck to be the lookout that night. Any other member of the Richmond's crew, we feel sure would have done exactly as Pinkston did. So we want them all remembered."

The annual field day of Ausonia Council was a great success. Among the honored guests was Congressman Peter F. Tague.

30 PARACHUTE FAILS; JUMPER NEAR DEATH

Joseph J. Gannon of No. 73 Village street, South End, a parachute jumper, is hovering between life and death at the Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn, after furnishing a Woburn carnival crowd of thousands a thrill that was not on the American Legion holiday program.

Gannon was billed to make a triple parachute descent from a hot air balloon. The first two parachutes worked to perfection. The third—the one on which the South End man's life depended, refused to work and his body was hurled through the roof of the home of Walter C. Sellars at No. 60 Bow street, Woburn.

In the excitement Frank L. Leavitt, who was repairing the roof on his home at No. 78 Bow street, eight doors distant from where the parachute jumper crashed, lost his balance and fell through a hole in the roof, suffering two broken ribs.

The awed crowd saw a cloud of splintered shingles fly into the air and the body of the performer disappeared. Someone turned in a fire alarm. When the firemen responded they found that Gannon's body was in the attic of the Sellars house. Gannon was unconscious, suffering from internal injuries, a dislocation of the shoulder and several broken ribs. At the Choate Memorial Hospital his condition is regarded as extremely serious.

DOCTOR HELD IN GIRL'S DEATH STRICKEN

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 2—Broken in body and mind and a shadow of the once powerful football coach of Binghamton Central High, Dr. Hinsley T. Cannon, formerly of this city, is attempting a "health come back" at his cottage on Hiawatha Island, east of Oswego, in preparation for trial on a homicide charge in connection with the death of Miss Monica Maloney, Brookline, Mass., in his office three weeks ago.

The once prominent doctor of this city is reported as being in poor physical condition, brought on by an automobile accident that preceded his arraignment on the homicide charge following the discovery of Miss Maloney's mysterious death.

He made an effort through his counsel to have the charge withheld for a time in order that he might come to his Summer cottage and rest.

Dr. Cannon was in this city while resting at his Hiawatha Island cottage several weeks before he was charged with murder. At that time it was explained he was recuperating from injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

When the physician was first arrested, he collapsed in the Tombs, where he was confined for several hours. His condition was such that it necessitated taking him to Bellevue Hospital. His illness was serious, and was due, the attending physician said, to his mental condition and a general nervous breakdown.

Dr. Cannon was first released on $3,500 bail when arrested in connection with the death of the pretty New England girl.

Later, when arraigned before Magistrates Frederick B. House, his bond was increased to $10,000.

Attorney Leo H. Klugherb, representing the physician, is ready for trial. Assistant District Attorney John Manly of New York city is prosecuting the case.

FIREBUG SETS 4 BUILDINGS ABLAZE

A pyromaniac is believed to be at large in Concord and Lincoln, following three incendiary fires which destroyed an automobile paint shop, two ice houses and a garage.

The series of fires occuring within a space of an hour or two have aroused the country-side and citizens are assisting the State and local police in an effort to uncover the identity of the firebug.

The first fire destroyed the automobile paint shop of William J. Bolger, Jr., on the Cambridge turnpike in Concord. Three automobiles and a wagon were destroyed, together with the building and its other contents.

While the Concord department was fighting this blaze, the Lincoln department was called to the A. G. Davis icehouse, about a mile and a half away. Two big houses and what remained of their contents were destroyed. The flames made such rapid headway that the buildings were beyond saving.

About the same time the garage of Lawrence Collins, in the Westvale section of Concord, was found on fire outside the building. After a long run, the department succeeded in extinguishing the fire before much damage was done.

UNABLE TO GET DOCTOR, LYNN BOY DIES

Some physicians in Lynn do not like to labor Labor Day, but the mortality rate takes no days off. Therefore Arthur J. Nault, five years old, is dead.

Arthur lived with his parents at No. 30 Pearl street, Lynn. He was going to attend school this fall.

But he ate some green corn, cooked the night before, and a few minutes later he was afflicted by violent convulsions.

His mother phoned for a doctor. His father ran for a doctor. But no doctor was to be had.

Fourteen physicians' offices were canvassed before the discouraged parents gave it up and applied simple and pitifully inadequate home remedies.

None of the doctors were out of town. Some were "occupied." Some were busy on other cases, and legitimately busy.

For want of the simplest treatment at the hands of a competent physician, the child suffered and died in his mothers arms.

Fred Woods' Body Found

Worcester, Sept. 2.—The body of Fred Woods, 25, of Cambridge, who was found to be missing after he had gone swimming at Lake Quinsigamond alone, was received today. Woods was subject to heart attacks, according to young men with whom he had been passing a vacation at a lake cottage.

GERMANY DECLARED SAFE FROM QUAKES

Lapsig, Germany, Sept. 2.—Germany is the most secure country in the world so far as earthquakes are concerned, says Dr. Emil Carlbaus, an expert on terrestrial convulsions. The doctor contends that the last earth tremors in northern Europe of any consequence happened in prehistoric days and that consequently the German soil is settled, of a conservative nature and in no danger of "quakes" of any terrestrial kind.

GIRL SHOT IN TRAP SET BY JERSEY HUNTER

Orange, N. J., Sept. 2.—Anna Soldis, fourteen, was recovering today at St. Mary's Hospital from shotgun wounds received when she walked into a trap presumably set for birds and squirrels in the garden of Devolle Worden, West Orange.

While walking in the garden with a maid at the Worden home the girl stepped on a thirty-foot string which was attached to a shotgun buried in the ground. She was wounded in the right leg and the chest.

$25,000 FOR MEDALS TO NON-MILITARY "SOLDIERS"

Washington, Sept. 2.—Secretary Weeks today approved a bill drafted in the War Department for recommendatio to Congress which would authorize the award of medals to governors, adjutant generals, members of local and district boards, medical and legal advisory boards and government appeal agents who served in the selective service systems during the World War.

The bill provides that the thanks of Congress be extended to those who by non-military service contributed to successful prosecution of the war, and carries an appropriation of $25,000 to finance the making and distribution of the medals.

GERMANS MAKE FIRST DAWES PLAN PAYMENT

Berlin, Sept. 2.—Germany today made her initial payment of 20,000,000 gold marks under the Dawes Plan. The payment was received here by Leon Fraser, assistant to Owen D. Young, agent-general ad interim for reparation payments.

AMERICAN SEAMAN STABBED IN FRANCE

Cherbourg, France, Sept. 2.—Naval hospital doctors announced today that Charles Drake, 23-year-old seaman from the Destroyer Dale, who was found in the street stabbed, will recover. Drake, who comes from Lawrenceville, Ga., was stabbed through the neck and cannot talk.

HEAVY BAIL FOR THREE HELD IN FUR THEFTS

James Bruno, Joseph Morris and his wife, Mrs. Ella Morris, were arraigned in Superior Court today before Judge Raymond, charged with breaking and entering the store of Edward F. Kahan & Sons, Inc., on Boylston street, and the larceny of $100,000 worth of furs.

The two men, bond unable to furnish bonds of $25,000 each were remanded to Charles street jail. Mrs. Morris provided bail of $10,000, which was ordered by Judge Raymond.

BEST GOLFERS IN THE COUNTRY TO COMPETE AT CALUMET

MANY STAR CHAMPS IN PLAY

Chicago, Sept. 2.—The district of Chicago, fast becoming the golf centre of America by virtue of the many major golf tournaments being played here, will be the scene of another championship match September 4, 5 and 6 at the Calumet Country Club, when the Western open championship will be played.

The coming event promises to eclipse all others. Already a field of from 260 to 300 players is in sight, whereas at Oakland Hills in the national meet, the number was approximately thirty.

Secondly, the stars of the country who played at Oakland Hills are sure to appear in the Calumet tournament.

Indicative of this is the fact that Gene Sarazen of New York, former national open champion and present holder of the Professional Golfers' Association title, heads the list of early entries.

Word has been received from Walter Hagen, British open champion, that he will be among the starters.

Jock Hutchison, of Glen View, the present champion; Cyril Walker, of Englewood, N. J., who won the national open title this year; Bobby Cruickshank, of Shackamaxon, runner-up in 1923 to Bobby Jones; Billy Milhorn, of St. Louis, who is dangerous in any tournament, and many others of that calibre are sure to appear.

EVANS LEADS AMATEUR LIST.

Joseph W. Busch, secretary of the Western Golf Association, has entries of Professionals Stanley Pelcher of Chicago; Lloyd Gullickson of the Elks Country Club, Worthington, O.; R. Douglas Brock of the Woodmont Country Club, West Allis, Wis.; John J. Burke of the Town Club of St. Paul; Sandy Anderson of the Laramie Country Club, Chicago; Eddie Williams of Peoria; Dave Spittal of Savannah, Ga.; Cy Anderberg, Neil Christian of Yakima, Wash.; Orville W. Chapin of Oak Ridge, Hopkins, Minn.; Louis E. Hart of Indian Hill, Chicago; J. C. Morton of Freeport, Ill.; Norman Clark of Woodhill, Minn.; Jack Anderson of Racine, Wis.; E. McElligott of the Superior Country Club of Minneapolis; Bob Christie of Joliet, Ill.; Erwin Nelson and Dick Nelson of Culver, Ind.; William Loughlin of Evansville, Ind.; J. William Fries of the Claremont Country Club, Oakland, Cal., and H. H. Webster of Ludington, Mich.

Amateur stars enrolled thus far include Charles (Chick) Evans, Jr., Edgewater, one of the only two amateurs that ever held the national open title; Captain E. F. Carter of Flossmoor, former Irish and Welsh champion; S. Davidson Herron of Exmoor, ex-national amateur, and Bob White of Olympia Fields, Ill.

Moe and Joe They Get the Dough---Sometimes

After cashing in 3,600 large juicy dollars, which he gathered on Mr. Mutt, Moe laid off the racket Labor Day. The healthy bankroll is now up to $15,855.21—sweet figures, what! And he is going to try to make it sweeter, now that he is back on his home grounds. For today he is going to one that can fly faster than Billy Delley can go to sleep.

MISS COLLETT LEADS WOMEN QUALIFIERS

Miss Collett was followed by Miss Marion Hollins, former champion, who did a fine 80, and Miss Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, O., with an 81.

There were practically no real upsets. Miss Edith Cummings, Chicago, defending champion, played an 85 and won sixth place in the qualifying round.

TILDEN LIKELY TO WIN TITLE FIFTH TIME

By VINCENT RICHARDS.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 2 (Universal).—When various tennis critics said Bill Johnston was through, they made the mistake of their lives. The coast wizard allowed Gerald Patterson, captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, only two games in their semi-final match for the national championship, the actual count being, 6—2, 6—0, 6—0.

"Little Bill" was simply invincible. He drove, volleyed and served with the rare dexterity that marked his play three years ago.

Johnston meets Tilden in the final round of the championship today. And, although the coast star is in marvelous form, all signs point to a Tilden victory.

"Big Bill" won the right to play Johnston by disposing of the writer in five sets, 4—6, 6—2, 8—6, 4—6, 6—4, in a match that produced many sensational rallies and exciting moments.

FOREIGN TENNIS STARS IN DAVIS CUP PLAY AT LONGWOOD

AUSTRALIA BATTLES FRANCE

By FRED C. LANE.

Since the Davis Cup was first put up for competition [illegible] in 1900 Great Britain, Australia and the United States have been the foremost contenders and defenders of that [illegible] prize. Smaller nations have made numerous bids for the most [illegible] of trophies in the world but with little success.

This year the situation changes its aspect. France, with two of the greatest [illegible] —Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra—do battle with Australia for the chance to meet the United States [illegible] of [illegible] in the semi-final round at the Longwood [illegible].

[illegible] O'Hara Wood [illegible] Australia [illegible] the two young French [illegible] both French [illegible] upon [illegible].

[illegible] R. Norris Williams [illegible] recently [illegible] Brian I. C. Norton [illegible] No. 8 [illegible] Wood [illegible] Patterson.

FRENCH PLAYERS STRONG

There is no [illegible] in the minds of tennis lovers but what Borotra is the greatest volley in the game. It is a [illegible] that has caused him to [illegible] above many of the celebrated [illegible] of the world.

Lacoste, on the other hand, is strong [illegible] back court game. He has [illegible] the style of de[illegible] one of the most [illegible] contenders for [illegible] that he has just passed the twen[illegible].

[illegible] Wood for three years have been considered the best [illegible]. This year they have been [illegible] up a number of times in American tournaments. The Kinsey brothers scored a triumph over this pair in the finals of the National Doubles Championship at Chestnut Hill, only two weeks ago.

On [illegible] fans are predicting a win for the French team, though on paper Australia has the edge. They feel [illegible] Borotra or La Coste can beat Pat O'Hara Wood [illegible] the singles [illegible] looked right for either one to score a victory over Patterson, strongest of the visiting Australians.

WILLIAMS PICKS FRANCE

To predict a win for the French team in the doubles would be [illegible]. Yet no less a person than R. Norris Williams, captain of the United States Davis Cup team, [illegible] towards the [illegible].

As Williams said after returning from [illegible]: "The play of the French [illegible] both in the singles and doubles was the biggest surprise to me.

"Both these promising youngsters have learned to combine their best assets in doubles play. Though I hardly [illegible] a win for them [illegible] style [illegible] I will be greatly disappointed [illegible] the match [illegible]."

The [illegible] for this international match [illegible] tomorrow [illegible] business is waxing [illegible] this match. The advance sale of tickets far exceeds that of any other tournament ever staged at the Longwood courts.

CHARLES DIRECT WINS RUTLAND PACE FEATURE

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 2—The card offered for the [illegible] harness horse race [illegible] afternoon [illegible] putting [illegible] of a $1,000 [illegible].

The [illegible] starters [illegible] speed [illegible] of side wheelers. The [illegible] of the day, with Bob [illegible] Ruth Brooks looked on as the likely winner.

The sport on Labor Day required fifteen heats before the three classes were finished.

[illegible] won the 2:20 [illegible] stake with [illegible] 2:12 [illegible] trot [illegible] strenuous heats.

The surprise of the racing occurred in the [illegible] pace when the [illegible] Charles Direct, which [illegible] Bay State [illegible] was [illegible] three [illegible] whirls [illegible] miles were paced better than 2:19, a sparkling [illegible] track [illegible].

'THE OUTSIDER' ROUGH ON DOCTORS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

IT is always open season for good melodrama, even when ... the regular doctors ...

... Atwill to the Plymouth as a ... attraction to the hottest Labor Day on official records.

Much to his credit, Mr. Atwill came through nobly in the somewhat unsympathetic role of a healer who stood the doctors on their ears and glorified ... his performance.

COMES AS BLESSING.

... on the medical profession ... Boston ... propaganda. That is just as well for everybody concerned, for nothing happened during the evening that would upset your faith in paragoric when the baby is ... On the whole, "The Outsider" was good entertainment, unusual in theme and came as a real blessing in these days of standardized dramatic subjects.

Mr. Atwill is too skilled an actor not to be able to take care ... but ... are frequent ... enunciation during his ... of wits with the flower of Boston's surgical profession. It was a rare scene, admirably played.

MISS DAVIS CLEVER.

Mr. Atwill also had artistic competition on his hands that ... attention ... characterization of the crippled girl restored to health by faith, love or the healer's ponderous machine for straightening legs and replacing faulty hips.

Besides Miss Davis, whose performance stood out brilliantly, Pat Somerset brought intelligence into an unhappy juvenile role and A. P. Kaye, Thomas Louden, Gilbert Douglas, John Blair and David Glassford made the honorary surgical staff of St. Martin's Hospital an interesting group.

As a dramatic novelty, "The Outsider" will hold its own in any company. But it's a bit rough on the doctors.

'HELL-BENT' IS PLAY FULL OF THRILLS

Thrills and laughs, one right after another in quick succession, and a feeling as the final curtain fell that ... Prize play, presented at the Hollis Theatre last evening.

"Hell-Bent Fer Heaven" is a play of the Blue Ridge Mountains. But it's a play of the feud country as it is today and not as it was in the days when neighbor shot at neighbor from behind each tree. And there isn't a single moonshiner in it. Nor a single dull moment, either.

REALISTIC VILLIAN.

But phantasies of the sort made famous by the Loeb-Leopold alienists take the place of the old-time moonshine in spurring the neurasthenic villian on to do his worst.

John F. Hamilton as this villian, the youth whose sensitive feelings prevent him from ever doing anything that he doesn't want to do, does some remarkably fine acting. So realistic is his portrayal of Rufe Pryor, who "got" religion at a re... others to his weaknesses that one ... play.

ADEQUATE CAST.

But Hamilton is only one of an excellent cast. William ... makes of David Hunt, the philosophic grandfather of the feud district, a character that need not fear comparison with Frank Bacon's Lightnin' Bill. And Frances Brandt is delightful as Meg Hunt, who wanted to mother all the halt and the lame.

Buford Armitage as Sid Hunt, the mountain boy returned from the war, is a delightful and not too heroic hero, while Marjorie Vonnegut ... Southern in the role of his sweetheart. Frank Farley as Andy Lowry makes an alarming would-be feudist. And Walter Downing is well cast for the part of Matt Hunt, the mountain storekeeper.

TRADE OUTLOOK IS GROWING BRIGHTER

Upward Trend Continues in New England; Hoover Optimistic

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Business is improved in nearly all lines in New England.

The upward trend now in progress for several weeks, is still noticeable, and holds good promise for the future, according to various leaders in the fields of finance and manufacturing industry.

Herbert Hoover

Betterment in the textile industry is not especially marked, but steady progress at least is being achieved. The month's five cent decline in cotton is expected to prove a stimulating factor in helping distribution of goods.

One of the most interesting optimistic utterances of the past week is that of Secretary Herbert Hoover.

General reaction of the world following a revival of open confidence is likely to expand American business in every way, in the opinion of Secretary Hoover. This expression of opinion, that increased business is due, is based upon the effect of Dawes plan, which, Secretary Hoover believes, will intensify competition in various industries with increased general confidence.

Better employment in Europe will call for increased consumption and consequent demand for American agricultural products, particularly animal products. European firms will branch out into neutral markets he believes, but as a large part of American exports are sent to non-competitive fields, these industries will hold their own.

REFUGEE CAPITAL.

Stability in currency and exchange abroad will result in withdrawal of considerable refugee capital on deposit in this country, he added. The secretary expects to see a large part of these foreign deposits return to Europe, where interest rates will be higher.

This action, however, he believes will not hurt the United States, for surplus of gold is becoming a sort of menace. Mr. Hoover believes need of loans abroad will be met to a large extent by withdrawals of these refugee deposits.

Chairman and Federal Reserve Agent Frederic H. Curtiss of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, reporting on industrial and financial conditions in the New England District, says today:

"Business is better in New England than in the Spring. The improvement in July and August was moderate, but it was nevertheless distinctly noticeable, coming as it did when business activity was so low. Broadly speaking, business conditions have been declining since the Spring of 1923. There was some improvement last Winter, but it was relatively unimportant in New England.

"The current improvement seems to have a more substantial basis, since it is accompanied by at least a temporary commodity price stabilization, and follows a period of several months' duration in which consumption of a number of important commodities has exceeded production.

BUILDING COSTS LOWER.

"The value of the contracts awarded for new construction in New England during July declined from June, as is usually the case at this time of the year, but nevertheless remained substantially above the total for July, 1923. The volume of residential building was somewhat less than a year ago, but the difference was made up by other class of building. Construction costs are slightly lower than they were in the spring.

"Money rates during August were slightly stronger than in July, although they are still very low. The most noticeable change in the New England banking situation in recent weeks has been in the sharp rise in commercial loans to customers."

DOREMUS & CO. OPEN KILBY STREET OFFICE

Doremus & Co., advertising agency of New York and Chicago, of which C. W. Barron is president, has opened a Boston office at 30 Kilby street in conjunction with the advertising agency business of the Boston News Bureau, established by Mr. Barron thirty-seven years ago.

Doremus & Co. has been in business for twenty-one years; for the past five years it has been under the active management of E. T. Tomlinson, Jr., who is vice-president and general manager; W. H. Long, Jr., and W. H. Burnham. Under their guidance it has attained an enviable position among the leaders in the advertising business. For many years the company specialized in financial advertising exclusively, but since 1919 it has operated two distinct departments, one for financial advertising and the other for important commercial and transportation accounts.

Besides its offices in New York, Chicago and Boston, Doremus & Co. has representation in a number of other cities and its own private wire connections between Boston, Detroit, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, thereby enabling it to furnish advertisers with the promptest kind of service and further has the benefit of local representation in many of the most important centres.

The entrance of Doremus & Co. into the Boston field means that New England advertisers will have at their disposal the experience and familiarity with local conditions of the Boston News Bureau agency supplemented by the resources and skilled personnel of a national organization.

In connection with the opening of the Boston office, Lewis W. Munro, advertising manager of the Harvard Business Review, has joined the staff of Doremus & Co.

MANY ISSUES AT NEW HIGHS IN NEW YORK

Numerous issues set new 1924 highs in early trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

When the accumulation of week-end buying orders had been absorbed, the upward price movement came to a temporary halt with the result that profit-taking sales and short selling again made their appearance and brought about a moderate reaction from the early highs.

American Can, Maxwell Motors A, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and General Electric were among the popular industrial shares to fall back to a point or more.

Bullish demonstrations continued, however, in a few specal stocks, Nash Motors moving up 4 points to a new 1924 high at 132 and Jersey Central and National enamelling preferred soaring 4 and 5 points, respectively. Call money again renewed at 2 per cent.

The opening Boston stock list was marked by a two-point advance in Eastern Steamship common to 46, a point gain in Island Creek Coal common, a point decline in Boston Elevated common, and New England Telephone's response to establishment of higher toll rates, with the stock improving ¾ to 108. Copper shares did not do much compared with the demonstration of strength in this group on the big board.

NICKEL PLATE MERGER PLANS

Salient features of the official proposal for Nickel Plate merger may be summarized as follows:

(1) Terms for exchange of securities same as given in bankers' statement a month ago.

(2) New Nickel Plate to lease all five roads for operation; rental for others than present Nickel Plate not wholly disclosed; no indication of income of lessor companies above fixed charges, if nay.

(3) Present Nickel Plate owns $15,500,000 par Chesapeake & Ohio, carried on its books at $12,072,028, and $12,000,000 par of Pere Marquette common "reported as purchased for $5,830,620."

(4) Chesapeake & Ohio not to receive any stocks of new company against its holdings of Hocking Valley, but Nickel Plate is to receive new company stock against its holdings of Chesapeake & Ohio and Pere Marquette.

(5) Nickel Plate Railroad to be leased to new company, and may later be conveyed to it.

(6) New Nickel Plate company is obliged to issue its stock in exchange for that of any lessor company at any time within a year from date of lease; the deposit committee is required to make the exchanges provided by the plan or return deposited stock within four years of August 20, 1924.

The official proposal is that the new company shall acquire control by lease for 999 years, or by "acquisition of at least a majority fo all their outstanding capital stock," or by both methods, and indicates that eventual consolidation is contemplated."

Terms of the proposed leases, which are of the highest importance to any minority stock which may remain outstnading after the leases are executed, are stated only in general terms.

Only an INSPECTED car can receive the blue certificate of inspection. It is your protection and safeguard.

If you do not see the blue Certificate of Inspection on the windshield of the car you want to buy, ask the dealer to have an inspection made. Or, telephone the Boston American, Liberty 4000. No charge nor obligation.

Cars which pass our inspection are, of course, the good cars. Thus, the list below contains the pick of the USED CAR market, in Boston. All types of cars, at all prices, and all Inspected.

Shall We Do Without Sleep Some Day?

Higher Races of Apes Have Abolished Tails. Can't We Abolish Sleep?

A half-developed being like man, hanging midway between primitive barbarism and ultimate perfection, should study the insect tribes which appear to have realized the possibilities of development in their line.

The study of the ant and the bee, the spider and the scorpion should fill us with hope. We should say to ourselves:

"If these tiny fragments of life can develop so highly, what may not WE hope for in the way of ultimate possibilities? Our beginning is so much more full of promise than the beginnings of our tiny insect brothers."

This writer, taking his own advice, which is most unusual, has been trying to get acquainted with some insects in the hope of cheering himself and getting new ideas.

From the female scorpion we acquire fresh veneration for the possibilities of maternal devotion.

The mother of the Gracchi has been well advertised because she preferred her sons to jewelry. The Russian mother who feeds herself to the wolves, instead of throwing her boy over the back of the sleigh in that usual way, is also highly praised. But their devotion shrinks to nothing when compared with that of any poor mother scorpion of Mexico's sandy tracts.

As soon as her young scorpions arrive they climb to her back, half a hundred of them or more. She moves about with them, protecting them, avoiding danger, giving them the sunlight. Meanwhile they are feeding on her body. Her movements get gradually slower and slower; finally they cease. The young scorpions depart, leaving the mother scorpion simply an empty shell. We should dislike to see any such exhibition of tenderness among human beings, but we can't help admiring the scorpion.

Spiders, who construct tiny balloons with little cars all complete, are wonderful creatures. They cross chasms in their balloons, throwing out bit of trailing web which seem to act as rudders. In their little way and in a perfectly adequate fashion they have solved aerial navigation, which still puzzles us. We admire spiders and kill only those with yellow stomachs, which are "poison."

But up to the present we have found the ant the most interestingly suggestive creature. He has developed and understands stirpiculture—the improvement of the race by careful breeding—which with us is as yet mere theory, and as we look down at the ant, we look up to him because the strangely active creature manages to do without sleep.

We human beings drowse through thirty years of our threescore and ten, but the ant is awake and working all the time.

If the ant has managed to live without sleep, if he has acquired the faculty of lifelong wakefulness, why should we not do as much in time? We take it for granted that sleep is essential, as we take everything else for granted. We used to take it for granted that the earth was flat, but we have stopped that. Sleep was at one time forced upon man and other animals.

The earth in its rollings turned away from the sun once in every twenty-four hours. In the darkness of the beginning man said to himself: "If I go walking around, I shall fall into a hole, so I shall lie down and wait until the sun comes again."

He did as all the animals did before him for millions of years. Since that time, man has conquered darkness. Why should he not ultimately conquer sleep?

We know that thin men, nervous, highly organized, do with far less sleep than others. We know that old age requires less sleep than youth.

Can we not cultivate and develop the characteristics which make sleep less necessary? Higher races of apes have abolished tails. Can't we abolish sleep?

As old age needs less sleep than babyhood, so in our maturity as a human race we shall probably demand less sleep than now in our racial babyhood. Perhaps none at all will be needed.

If that happens our lives will be doubled in value, they will be complete. The hours of sunlight will be devoted to examination and admiration of nature's beauties on this earth.

The hours of darkness, given up to sleep no longer, will be devoted to the study of space, to investigation among other worlds.

That kind of life will be worth while. Bear in mind that we shall only really begin to live on this earth when we shall have settled all the little social and material questions here and shall have begun in earnest the study of the universe in which we are a speck.

The days of the future will be given up to artistic enjoyment of the beautiful. The nights will be devoted to intellectual development and research.

Man will LIVE.

Rich but Stingy

Pay Up, Uncle Sam

Mr. Steward, head of the organization of government employes, complains justly of the miserable pay that the richest nation gives to those that do its work.

The richest of nations should be unwilling to put its employes on close to a starvation basis.

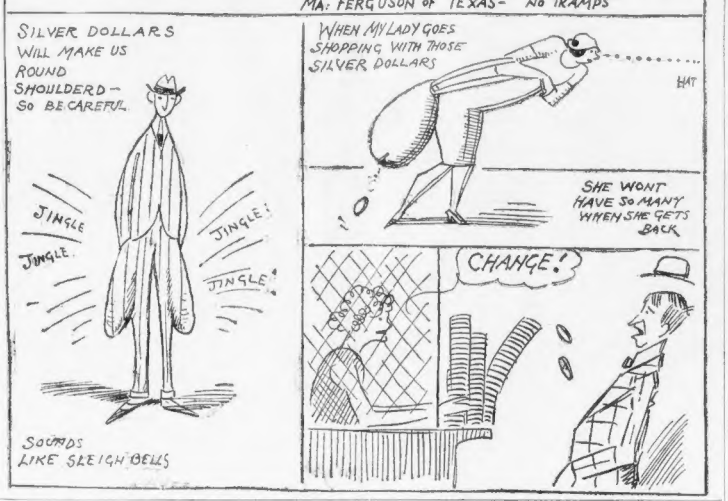

Government statistics show that the cost of living is 69.1 higher than it was in 1913. Government workers get only 15 per cent. more than they did before the war, including their bonus of $20 a month.

The government doesn't pay married men enough to support their families. District of Columbia workers cannot vote, and therefore cannot impress the law-makers. But that ought not to prevent justice.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

ONE reason why a man stays young so much longer than a woman is because a woman always insists on doing all his worrying for him.

Man was made to mourn—but woman beats him to it.

Helen Rowland

To a man, all life is a fascinating, exciting GAME, and he can squeeze more joy out of one hour of it than a woman can extract from a whole year.

A man makes a game of his work—a woman can't even enjoy a game unless she makes work of it.

That's the real secret of man's protracted youth and of all woman's premature gray hairs and worry wrinkles.

She can't enjoy a novel unless she knows "how it's going to turn out," or a love affair unless she knows just where it's leading.

She can't enjoy a play unless it makes her cry, or be content with a husband unless he gives her something to worry about.

She can't be happy unless she's serious.

Until a woman learns to look upon life not as a dispensation or a bitter responsibility, but as a Great Adventure, a beautiful Game of Chance, she will never delight in it as man does.

* * *

Until she discovers that business is not a sentence at hard labor and work is not a treadmill, and learns to look upon them as a fascinating sport she will never get any real joy out of them.

* * *

Unless she ceases to look upon politics as a "cause" or a "mission" and begins to regard it as an exciting gamble she will never get any real thrill from it.

* * *

Whether he's playing at golf, or politics or stocks or art or love-making, a man always plays just for the sheer joy of PLAYING.

If things go wrong, it merely increases his zest and enthusiasm, and inspires him to make a more skillful stroke.

But a woman always plays to WIN. And if things go wrong it wrings her heart and shatters her nerves.

It's the chance, the gamble, the surprises that relieve a man's life from its deadly monotony and make it an adventure instead of a duty.

* * *

That's why most men keep their looks, their figures and their spirit of youth so much longer than most women.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

BELOW Earth's surface, far below, the hidden waters glide, down where no nodding wind-flowers
grows, no daisies march beside.
Like starless night the shades press down upon the silent stream that never mirrors Earth's bright gown or sunset's ruddy gleam. Throughout rock and clod it akes its way; fair down, unseen, unheard, unmindful of the azure day, the singing wind and bird.
The little stream that greets the sun
goes laughing through the grass, but where these quiet waters run no light and shadow pass. And yet, above its secret course how tall the willow trees what verdant meadows have their source in its dim mysteries! And where it wends beneath men's feet the greenest grasses grow, the clover blossoms are most sweet, the reddest roses blow. No eye can trace its passageway but all the world can see the the nodding roses, blithe and gay, the wide-spread willow tree. In life flow hidden waters, too, the world can never know, and where these silent streams glide through, soul's fairest flowers grow. Brave faith, true love, fair hope and trust, life's hidden waters, these, to conjure out of clods and dust man's highest harmonies.

Blind Woman Wants Home

Helping Hand Editor:

Do you suppose you can find a home for a lady 93 years old and blind, always has her own way. I have had her 2½ years and she is getting too hard for me to take care of, or at least I cannot care for her and go to my work. I can pay $8 a week. No washing. When her mind is right, she is good company. She would not be the care of a baby. The State pays only $3. She would want to be somewhere in Boston, as I shall give her personal attention. She requires a place where there are other women, but no children. MRS. A. F. S.

Many Clothes to Give

Helping Hand Editor:

Please allow me to congratulate you on the wonderful work that is being done through your Helping Hand. I think it is the most useful and helpful thing that any paper has ever undertaken to do. I have a great many clothes, size 36, that I shall be very glad to give to someone—some underwear and shoes size 6½. Please send me an address and I will mail them. I am only a girl but have always been very much interested in charity work. ANNIE E. K.

Thank you, Annie, for your interest in our work and for the generous offering. Without the cooperation of generous readers like you, we could not do the great good we are doing for our needy readers.

Offers Baby Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

Please send me the address of some woman who needs baby clothes. MRS. F. L. W.

Thanks for this welcome offer. Mrs. M. E. J., a young woman, deserted by her husband, and expecting a visit from the stork will be much cheered when she receives these things. We are sending you her address.

Wants to Board Children

Helping Hand Editor:

I wonder if there is anyone in Greater Boston who would take two children to board for about $3 each. I could take them home from Saturday noon until Sunday night. I am their only support and make only $11 a week. If anybody had any clothes for the girl 8, for school, I would be very thankful. The boy is 5. The girl can help with the dishes or errands.

GIVE THE SAME CHANCE YOU'D DEMAND FOR YOURSELF

When a man comes to your office to sell you something, how do you treat him?

Make him feel like an interloper or a hireling whom you would avoid?

Or do you treat him like a gentleman, in a courteous manner refusing his offers if you think it best for you.

It is not necessary to buy to be a gentleman.

A salesman should have a chance. You want a chance, do you not?

If you are in business you have something to sell, either service or goods and you expect courtesy.

Because it is not necessary for you to go out personally to sell your service or goods, you need not treat the man who must introduce himself that way as if he were a tramp or a fake.

The man or the woman who cannot be gracious in refusing to buy acknowledges a weak spot in the character.

Usually it is fear which leads to rudeness.

Sometimes it is ignorance of how else to refuse.

Which class do you wish to not yourself in?

Learn to be polite even when firmly refusing to buy.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON SAILORS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ADMIRAL BOYLE SOMERVILLE gives a description, in Blackwood's Magazine in February, 1920, of an inspection made on an armed merchantman during the war which is very interesting.

The Admiral first described the arrangement on board a warship, where there is no luxury, but where everything is clean and tidy. There were even bathrooms for the stokers.

On the merchantman, however, he found conditions appalling. The stokers slept in the hold. Round the dirty walls iron beds were placed, one over the other, as many as the place would hold, up to fourteen in number. Every bed was occupied.

The stokers lay there, black and wet, just as they had come down from the engine room. Each man lay huddled up on his "donkey's breakfast," which consists of a coarse brown sack filled with old, hard straw. It was not even arranged as a mattress with square corners and flattened at the sides, but was simply a hard, stuffed sack. There was no other furniture of any sort, no tables, no chairs, no benches, and the only place for clothes was a narrow shelf which would hardly hold a hat.

At mealtimes one member from every cabin crawled up in turn to the galley and fetched down a big dish full of stew, or whatever else it happened to be. Each man got up as the dish was passed around and took his portion of the horrible stuff in his hands and ate it sitting or lying on his bed. It was a far more degrading sight than to see the inhabitants of a zoo. There were no plates, knives or forks, no tables to have put them on, not even a bench to sit on while eating. When the visitors asked where the stokers' bathroom was, the response was a pitying smile and a statement that such an effeminate luxury was completely unknown among those men. It was also said, "The stokers are used to it. We are not particular on board."

That such conditions should react upon the health of the men is to be expected. Sailors not only suffer from accidents, including drowning, but also from many diseases such as typhus and yellow fever.

There is no excuse for this as the cause of the diseases and the way they spread is known and there are scientific methods of prevention. There is, for instance, that method applied by Gorgas in Panama. As soon as people know how to deal with diseases they become harmless and the area of land in question is cleared of infection.

The question opens an opportunity for the Red Cross which is probably the only society properly equipped to handle the situation.

Andrew Balfour once quoted a remark of Disraeli's to the effect that, "A great scientist and wit said three hundred years ago that there was a misunderstanding in the Vulgate, for where Vanitas vanitatum omnia vanitas was written, what the Wise King had really said was Sanitas sanitatum omnia sanitas."

The health of the nation should always be uppermost in the minds of its ministers.

Both from the standpoint of economy and humanity it will be advantageous to consider the health of the men at sea.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON CHEMISTRY OF AIR

By Garrett P. Serviss

IN the blue sky is the sun's laboratory. His work there has only recently begun to attract attention down here on this bottom where we live. It is the aeronauts and the mountain climbers that have made the chemistry of the atmosphere a subject of study.

It would be better called chemical action of the solar rays, but its immediate effects are to be seen in the composition of the atmosphere. The "mal de montagne" (mountain sickness), which may have been the fundamental cause of the tragic termination of the third attempt to climb Mt. Everest last June, is probably due to chemical action of the sunbeam charging the upper air with substances poisonous to the human organism.

Ultra-Violet Rays

Then, too, at great elevations, where the air is rare, reign the death-dealing ultra-violet rays, whose powers of destruction are so reduced at the earth's surface that they can be employed by the physician for healing certain diseases, but on high they are unrestrained in their deadliness.

It is usually thought that the chief cause of mal de montagne is the relative lack of oxygen at great heights, and this is why oxygen is artificially added to the air breathed by those who make lofty ascensions.

The victims of the Everest climb were especially furnished with oxygen before starting from their last camp about 2,500 feet below the summit; yet they perished, though there may have been other causes of the disaster besides the effects of mal de montagne.

But, at any rate, it seems to be demonstrated that there are poisons in the upper atmosphere, at any rate in the neighborhood of very high mountain peaks, which are manufactured by the chemical action of the sun upon substances contained in the air there.

Dr. Angell, an Italian chemist, has studied at the summit of Monte Rosa the decomposition of an extremely unstable compound of nitrogen, oxygen and hydrogen, called "nitroxyle," which, according to certain properties which it shows, is suspected of being as deadly as prussic acid. The products of its decomposition are nitrogen oxide and ammonium nitrite. The latter has been found to alter the composition of the blood, which may induce serious maladies.

It has also been found by others that exposure to the ultra-violet rays is capable, in certain circumstances, of producing an organic compound containing nitrogen. By the union of formaldehyde and nitroxyle a very unstable alcohol is formed, of an intense sky-blue color. This alcohol decomposes spontaneously, and one of its products is methyl alcohol, which is a violent poison for man, though benign for plants, which transform it into sugar and starch.

The fact is that the atmosphere is still imperfectly known to science. It is primarily in the hope of extending knowledge of its upper layers that Professor Goddard invented his "moon-rocket," for that apparatus, without going a thousandth part of the distance to the moon, might bring us down very instructive samples of the air at elevations of many miles.

In High Air

It is also within the power of aviators, as H. Vigneron has said, to add largely to our knowledge of the state of the high air by carrying on their record-breaking flights vessels in which samples of air could be captured at various levels and brought back for laboratory examination.

Aviators seem to be affected less by mal de montagne than mountain climbers. It would be interesting to know whether this is due to any perceptible difference in the composition of the air in open space and that close to, or in connection with, the summits of mountains. Hitherto the results of the action of the ultra-violet rays have not been studied amid the surroundings of an aviator who is far from all contact with the surface of the earth and its irregularities.
